Police Pay Feud Settled; Pay Cuts Ruled Out

The dispute over holiday pay between village officials and police in Hoffman Estates was resolved last night at a meeting between representatives of the Fraternal Order of Police and Mayor Frederick Downey.

No deductions will be made from police pay checks as was expected prior to the meeting. Those present at the meeting also agreed that a personnel policy manual will be established to prevent future disputes and that the FOP will have access to the mayor prior to any policy edicts being established, according to FOP spokesman.

The holiday pay dispute arose Monday when the police learned that wages they received for working the Fourth of July and Memorial Day would be deducted.

According to Downey the police should have received compensatory time off instead of cash for working the holidays because they are salaried employes.

Downey said the fact that the men were paid was a clerical error.

THE POLICE have been paid for working the holidays since November, 1970. According to the village this has been contrary to village policy.

An FOP representative said the police have learned that employes of the village's street department were paid for working the holidays and that there is no plans to make deductions from their checks.

The meeting was attended by an FOP special delegation. It is expected the officers will be united in the village's action on this matter.

The spokesman also mentioned that a lawyer may be retained to negotiate a formal written contract with the village for the FOP. Yearly negotiations are currently held, but no formal contract has ever been written. Formal action is expected in the future.

"BIG BIRD" will be walking the streets Saturday with the Hoffman Estates Jaycees as they take orders for "Cook's Day Off" to be held Aug. 19. For $1.75 per person, the Jaycees will deliver barbecued chicken dinners to your home between noon and 6 p.m. in an effort to raise funds for civic projects.

Village, State Cooperation Cuts Amount Of Flood Water

by NANCY COWGER

Cooperation by the village of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg with the Illinois Department of Transportation (DOT) is in the process of cutting in half the rain floodwaters in the vicinity of the Golf-Higgins-Roselle roads triangle.

But in a storm, so severe it occurs on an average of once every 10 years, there still are 1,036 gallons per second of flood waters that cannot be handled with drainage facilities existing or under way.

The figures were provided to Hoffman Estates representatives yesterday morning by Al Sifer, DOT project group engineer, in a meeting to examine water retention and drainage facilities in Hoffman Estates and adjoining Schaumburg.

The meeting was requested by Hoffman Estates, and officials attending were Richard Regan, plan commission chairman; John Hossack, public works superintendent; George Longmeyer, village administrator; and Ed Kalasa, deputy fire chief.

BECAUSE PORTIONS OF Hoffman Estates originally were built on a flood plain, before the village was incorporated, the triangle and areas around it are flooded in heavy storms.

Later development sometimes contributed to the problem, although it also helped because retention and drainage facilities have been added with the development.

Highway development also helped reduce the flood waters, said Sifer. Four years ago, the area received a total of 407.2 cubic feet per second of water during heavy storms. A cubic foot is equal to 7.6 gallons. At this time, said Sifer, retention and drainages, such as holding basins and storm sewers, handled part of the problem.

But there still was a 261.2 cubic feet per second deficit, or excess of flood water above the capacity of the facilities.

Highway development coupled with cooperative drainage and retention projects, some completed and others still pending, reduced the deficit to 136.4 cubic feet per second.

HOFFMAN ESTATES now is looking for means of reducing that deficit still further.

Regan and Hossack agreed minor relief could be found by enlarging retention basins already existing southwest of the Higgins-Roselle roads intersection. But expansion capabilities are limited, and this measure cannot hope to solve the problem, they said, and Sifer agreed.

One step which would completely handle the problem, said Sifer, is installation of a 66-inch storm sewer along Higgins Road from a point about midway between Golf and Roselle roads to Meacham Road.

This plan wes proposed last year, originally with twin sewers, but was then cut back to a single sewer.

Under the twin sewer proposal, the state agreed to pay $111,000, Hoffman Estates agreed to pay $150,000 and Schaumburg was asked to pay $37,000, but declined. Schaumburg said it was not responsible for the flood problems, and

CEC To Provide Septemberfest Trash Cans

The Clean Environment Committee will participate in Schaumburg's Second Annual Septemberfest in a unique way this year.

Rather than entering a float in the Septemberfest parade as originally planned, the committee has decided providing adequate refuse cans to collect debris is more in keeping with their established purpose.

CEC members will be responsible for placing trash containers along the parade route as well as the area in which booths will be located.

Septemberfest will be held Sept. 4 and is being co-sponsored by the local Jaycee chapter and Greater Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry.

Responds To Mounting Criticism

Mosquito Control 95% Effective: Official

by BARRY SIGALE

Despite criticism from several sources, the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) will continue its job of trying to provide preventive measures in the fight against mosquitos.

That's the reaction of Wilbur Mitchell, director of NMAD, who answered the question of "How do you respond to criticism?" by himself asking, "How can you?"

Mitchell thinks NMAD is doing an effective job in mosquito control, with a prevention program that he says is at least 95 per cent effective.

There is some feeling the mosquito district is not doing a good job.

Most criticism has come from three communities — Schaumburg, Palatine and Hoffman Estates. There have been scattered complaints from residents throughout the Northwest suburbs who are simply bothered by mosquitos.

In Schaumburg and Palatine, NMAD has been prohibited by ordinance from spraying Malathion and other toxic chemicals and the validity of the ordinance is being challenged in the courts.

SUGGESTION HAS been made by Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee calling for the withdrawal of the village from NMAD, replacing it with a local department of water management and mosquito control.

In Hoffman Estates, a charge has been made that the village has been the victim of a lack of service by the taxing body and there is a possibility a class action suit may be filed demanding either better service or a refund of tax money.

About the ban on spraying in Schaumburg and Palatine, Mitchell said, 'I feel sorry for both communities. They're getting chewed up (by mosquitos)."

The mosquito district has continued its program of prevention in these communities but has not sprayed within their boundaries because of the pending litigation.

Mitchell said the situation in the two communities warrants spraying, but the district's attorney has advised against spraying until local ordinances were rescinded. Schaumburg even declared an emergency situation, but would not modify its ordinance, which says it would fine anyone between $200 and $500 per offense, Mitchell said. In Palatine, spraying is an offense with a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $200.

MITCHELL RESPONDED to the suggestion by Schaumburg that the control of mosquitos should be the responsibility of local government by saying, "It would be sort of a waste of money."

He said the initial cost for one spray machine would be about $2,500 not including materials. He also said that spraying mosquitos would only be a stop gap measure and that local agencies would have to "get rid of the sources of the mosquito problem," thus there would be a big expense for preventative measures.

Mitchell also challenged statements by Hoffman Estates plan commission chairman Richard Regan, who said his community has been the victim of poor service.

"Regan is not as informed as he should be," Mitchell contended. "Wednesday night we began our fourth spraying (of Hoffman Estates) since the 10th of July. People should become better informed. I wouldn't tell them (referring to some of his critics) how to run their city. Not until I learned about what's going on there first. And I certainly wouldn't do it by telephone."

OPEN THURSDAY AND FRIDAY TO 9 P.M.

GROUND WILL be broken Sunday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village for a $9 million expansion program to include a five-story ambulatory care center and a two-story community health building. Architect's drawing shows what the enlarged facility will look like when completed.

Groundbreaking To Feature Ogilvie

Illinois Gov Richard B. Ogilvie and John Cardinal Cody, archbishop of Chicago, will participate in groundbreaking ceremonies for the $9 million expansion of Alexian Brothers Medical Center at 11 a.m. Sunday at the hospital on Biesterfield Road in Elk Grove Village.

Gov. Ogilvie will be the featured speaker at the event marking the start of construction of a five-story ambulatory care center and a two-story community health building.

"The population of our service area is expected to double in a decade," Marshall Bennett, chairman of the hospital's board of trustees, said. "When our expansion is completed in 1974, we will have two to three times the capacity to provide services."

Bennett, partner in the Bennett & Kahnweiler industrial real estate firm, will preside at the groundbreaking ceremonies.

THE EXISTING hospital building, which opened in 1966, will serve as the core of the new medical center. Along with the newly opened $1.5 milion C. E. Neihoff Pavilion for mental health and rehabilitation medicine, on Bisner Road South of Biesterfield Road, the expansion program will more than double the size of the original facility.

The Pavilion for Community Health and Ambulatory Care Center, connected to the main building, will house an emergency care complex five times larger than present facilities and an outpatient department 17 times larger.

The new buildings also will provide space for nuclear medicine, inhalation therapy, pharmacy and other testing departments. Three floors of the ambulatory care building will be used for doctors' offices.

"Alexian Brothers Medical Center is building toward a model of 'same day' care," Dr. Alberto Armas, president of the medical-dental staff, said. "(This) means the patient can undergo diagnostic and therapeutic procedures up to and including minor surgery without being admitted to the hospital."

DR. ARMAS ADDED that the hospital will still provide the intensive and acute care facilities it has in the past.

Besides more out-patient facilities, the expansion will increase the number of hospital beds from the current 340 to a possible 420 beds.

More than $1 million has been raised from public donations toward a campaign goal of $1.8 million to pay for the expansion. The rest of the building program will be financed through a bond and anticipated revenue.

already had installed facilities to contribute to a solution.

Although Hoffman Estates later agreed to cover the $37,000 refused by Schaumburg, the three governmental units could not reach accord, said Sifer. Neither could they agree to a similar plan using just one sewer main.

WHILE THE PLAN had been to install the mains while Higgins Road widening construction still was in progress, Sifer said yesterday it still could be accomplished, even with the road work now completed. However, it would be more expensive, he added.

A third alternaive Hoffman Estates officials are considering is the purchase of land southwest of the Higgins-Roselle intersection for installation of more retention basins. The land could be undeveloped, or the site of homes.

Hossack and Sifer said the choice of solutions likely would hinge on economics. If so, installation of the single storm sewer along Higgins could be the one employed.

Sifer said DOT still would be willing to participate financially in the main installation project. But, he said, it would be highly unusual for DOT to contribute funds to the building of retention basins. Its work generally is limited to projects contiguous to state highways, Sifer said, adding he does not know of any instances where DOT has helped pay for retention basis.

Newspapers Accepted At Recycling Center

Discarded newspapers may be deposited daily at the Hoffman Estates temporary recycling center on the grounds of the old village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Glass collections will continue from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. each second and fourth Saturday.

Members of the village environmental concerns committee, operators of the center, ask that papers be either bundled or placed in grocery sacks. Magazines are not acceptable.

Used glass bottles and containers must be rinsed and free of metal rims. It is not necessary to remove labels prior to deposit.

The committee is seeking the donation of a bin appropriate for glass collection in order to make the glass portion of the center permanent.

Reclamation proceeds from both newspapers and glass will be used for village beautification.

Political Donations Affect Taxes

Political contributions made this year may affect your 1972 tax liability, according to Roger C. Beck, Internal Revenue district director for Northern Illinois.

Under the Revenue Act of 1971, political contributions made after 1971 to candidates for elections to federal, state or local offices, in primary, special or general elections, may be claimed as a credit or a deduction on your 1972 tax return.

Beck said taxpayers may claim a credit for half of the political contributions made during the year, with a maximum credit of $25 allowed on a joint return, $12.50 on the return of a single person (or married person filing separately). This credit is applied directly against the tax liability.

Instead of the credit, persons may deduct the amount of the political contribution as an itemized deduction. This deduction, on a joint return, cannot exceed $100, and on the return of a single person (or married person filing separately) cannot exceed $50. Contributions made to national political party committees are also included under this new ruling.

Food Stamp Is Protested

Carrying signs with slogans such as "There is hunger in the suburbs too" and "We don't have the money to eat nor to travel to Chicago to apply for stamps," a busload of low-income families from the Northwest suburbs protested yesterday morning before the offices of the Cook County Department of Public Aid.

They joined protestors from the south and western suburbs in demanding that food stamp outposts be returned to outlying suburbs.

Currently, those persons residing in suburban Cook County who are eligible to receive food stamps, must apply through the main outlet at 2030 S. Michigan Ave.

"We are starving unnecessarily in the Northwest suburbs," said one woman, who said the distribution of food stamps is excluding the poor of suburbia.

IN DECEMBER, 1970, a food stamp outlet was established through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows. Caseworkers from the Michigan Avenue office were sent once a week to check out applicants.

However, last April all outpost workers were recalled. The reason given at that time was that caseworkers needed to learn the new revisions made in the program. They have not been returned.

David Daniels, Director of Cook County Department of Public Aid met for an hour with the delegation yesterday.

He gave three reasons for the recalling of the outpost workers. They were: a lack of manpower, stricter requirements set down by the Department of Agriculture which finances the program, and the hazard of having individual caseworkers in outlying areas without proper supervision.

It was suggested that the staff of neighborhood centers be utilized more in screening applicants for food stamps. He agreed to consider the idea.

Daniels promised in the next two weeks to meet with representatives of the food stamp program in order to try and again institute a distribution plan for the suburbs.

If no immediate steps have been taken in that period, many members of the delegation vowed they would be back in stronger force.

They Dig Near Mount Vernon

Archeology Pupils Learn Firsthand

by WANDALYN RICE

When the first contingent of students from Hersey High School arrived at the farm near Mount Vernon, Ill., where they planned to dig for archeological treasures, they asked the farmer where the bathroom was.

His reply: "You haven't dug it yet."

At that point, the students may have begun to get the idea they were settling into fairly primitive surroundings.

For the next 12 days the 17 students and Naidyne Bridwell, a teacher at Hersey, kept a lookout for the Missouri Monster, complained about the food prepared by "Cookie" (Mrs. Bridwell's husband), and watched a flash flood fill up their carefully-dug latrine.

And, more importantly, they dug into the soil of the cornfield and sifted its contents for artifacts left by Indians who had lived there before the time of Christ.

THE ARTIFACTS they found, including pottery fragments, a nearly-intact hoe and pieces of bone and charcoal have been sent to Southern Illinois University and a nearby junior college where they will be dated, studied and placed on display.

"We don't know yet how much we've uncovered," Mrs. Bridwell said after returning from the trip. "We believe we are on the site of a settlement that dates from 4,000 B.C. and we turned up some of the oldest things that have been found in that area."

The trip grew out of an archeology club at Hersey advised by Mrs. Bridwell, a teacher of world history and Latin with training in classical archeology.

Their site, on the Herber Dare farm three miles outside of Mount Vernon, has an official number assigned by the Illinois Association for the Advancement of Archeology.

The area was divided into five-foot squares and teams of students carefully excavated, six inches at a time. At the end of the 12 days of work, they had dug 24 inches into the soil.

THE WORK, the students reported, was hot, tiring and interfered with by mosquitos, bees and snakes. Even so most of them hope to go back next summer with Mrs. Bridwell to do some more digging.

"Mr. Dare has agreed he won't plow the area and plant it this year," Mrs. Bridwell said. "We are convinced there is much more there."

In addition to the archeological experience, the students came back with stories of the hospitality of the residents of Mount Vernon.

"The town was so nice to us," one girl said. "They started to recognize who we were and they were all talking about it."

The young archeologists also got lessons in outdoor survival. The first latrine was flooded after a heavy rain because the girls who dug it put it in a dry creek bed. "We told everybody we wanted running water," one of the girls said, "and, boy, did we have running water."

Plastic Affects Drug's Potency

The Illinois Pharmaceutical Association has warned patients taking nitroglycerin tablets that packaging of the drug in plastic vials with large cotton fillers can result in loss of potency ranging to 84 per cent in three months.

According to Roger Cain, executive director of the statewide professional organization of pharmacists, recent research conducted by a University of Maryland team indicated that plastic packaging, placing of labels inside the vial with the drug, use of a large amount of cotton filler, and packaging of nitroglycerin with aspirin all can result in a rapid loss of potency of the nitroglycerin tablets which are often prescribed for heart patients.

"Laboratory tests involving the analysis of nitroglycerin tablets which had been dispensed three months earlier in clear plastic vials with labels placed inside the bottle indicated that the tablets had lost 84 per cent of their labeled potency," Cain revealed.

"Other tests on nitroglycerin tablets which had been packaged in a tight, screw-cap glass bottle with a large amount of filler such as cotton indicated that the tablets had lost 75 per cent of labeled efficiency after a three-month period," said Cain.

Harper Board Wonders: Should We Buy 2nd Site?

The Harper College board congratulated itself and its administration Wednesday for achieving most of the goals set for the institution last year.

In addition, board members agreed with college Pres. Robert Lahti that the biggest decision facing them in the coming year is whether to buy a second site to accommodate future enrollment.

The board met Wednesday night to review the 36 institutional goals set for the 1971-72 year. They will meet in all-day session today and tomorrow to "review the whole system" in preparation for a decision on possible future expansion.

AMONG THE accomplishments cited by Lahti in his report was the completion of audits by outside consultants on the effectiveness of several departments, including community relations, counseling and general administration.

Lahti said the biggest advantage of completing the audits with outsiders was "we saw that good, professional people can get close to us and what we're doing and be pleased with us."

In addition, Lahti said the college has made significant accomplishments in increasing efficiency and in relating it to costs during the past year. He also said the college has significantly increased the amount of money it will be receiving through grants from outside agencies.

Other accomplishments cited by Lahti included increasing the number of seminars for area business and industrial leaders from 14 to 35, developing special programs for housewives, and increasing the in-service training programs for all employes.

THE COLLEGE ALSO met its goal in holding per student cost to $1,616 last year, Lahti said. He said the cost was "just about average" for junior colleges in the state.

Among the goals not completely accomplished last year, he said, were development of a wage and salary plan for administrators and review of the evaluation system for faculty members.

Lahti said efforts to meet those goals would be continued during the coming year.

Overall, Lahti said, the college partially or completely achieved 30 or 31 of its goals for last year.

He said, "We set out and accomplished something on every major issue that was facing us. We also accomplished a lot of things that weren't in our goals because we have the kind of people who, whenever something comes up and has to be done, they do it without question."

Cable Television: A 'Rebel' In Home Entertainment

by RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — "Hey, what's on?" has become the central question of the television age, replacing "What is the meaning of life?"

Until now, the answer has usually been something like "My Little Margie," "The Flintstones," "The Dating Game" or "football." But we are in the midst of an incipient revolution that may some day give us such viewing alternatives as the Sunday service at the Presbyterian church down on the corner, a PTA meeting at the local high school, a concert by a polka band down at the America VFW hall or a panel discussion by a neighborhood group on how to deal with pollution problems in their area.

The rebel in question is cable television. The specific agent involved is the public access channel, which is something like a telephone line. Theoretically, at least, it can be used on a first-come, first-served basis at any time by anybody who wants to communicate something. Cable television (which brings signals to television receivers through wires instead of the air) can transmit a large number of signals cheaply and efficiently.

SO WHEN THE Federal Communications Commission (FCC) early this year issued an involved set of regulations for cable television, it included a provision that all new cable systems in the top 100 television markets in the country must provide at least one public access channel. And it ordered all existing systems to provide a public channel before April 1, 1977.

Thus far there are only two regularly functioning public service operations, one in Reading, Pa., and the other in New York.

Since New York's two public service channels began operating last July (they were required by the city's franchise agreement with the two cable companies active here), more than 100 independent groups have produced programs. Each channel is active for about five hours a day.

Most individuals and local groups are awed by the thought of putting on their own television show. (What mortal dates to imagine himself the equal of Walter Cronkite, Lucille Ball or Johnny Carson?) So almost all the public access programs produced here have been supervised by professionals at three centers supported by government and foundations funds, New York University's Alternate Media Center, Global Village and Open Channel.

Open Channel, which has spent about $150,000 in its first year in helping turn out about six hours of programming a week, gave some idea of the possibilities of public access at a recent retrospective showing of programs it helped create.

ONE HIGH SCHOOL student interviews another about graffiti on the school walls. A community newspaper reporter investigates National Guard activities at a local park. A group of black construction workers picket a project. The choir at a church bursts into a gospel. A neighborhood group discusses zoning changes in its area.

None of which will knock "All in the Family" off the rating charts. But the programs show the flexibility of cable television — programs can be shown citywide or to a small area, designed for a large general audience or a small specific one.

"We have freedom of speech and freedom of the press," says Theodora Sklover, Open Channel's executive director. "This is the beginning of freedom of television."

The stress is on the word "beginning," since public access television still has more than its share of problems.

One is regulation. What limits, if any, should be put on what kind of material is shown and who will impose those limits? What about libel, inciting a riot, blasphemy: (FCC rules already prohibit the showing of advertising, lottery information or obscene matter.)

THE NEW YORK cable systems are permitted by their franchise to preview all public access programs (all shows are video taped). But only two programs have been rejected, both for being too sexually explicit.

"When the public access idea first came up, everybody thought it would all be only kooks coming up with programs," Ms. Sklover says. "It hasn't turned out that way. The only time we've turned people down is when we didn't have enough facilities to meet the demand."

Another problem is financing. Even though cable programs are relatively cheap to produce, not every individual or group can afford his own studio. The public access centers here have been providing equipment and technical help to would-be program producers but their grants will not last forever and they want future cable franchise arrangements to provide for some kind of financing for public access, perhaps by taxing cable fees.

Politics enters in, too. Anda Korsts wrote recently in the "Cable Report" section of the "Chicago Jounalism Review" that one explanation for the lack of cable television franchises in Chicago is tht Mayor Richard Daley is concerned about the policital possibilities of public access.

THERE IS ALSO the difficulty in overcoming the traditional let-you-entertain-me attitude toward television. "People have to learn that just as a piece of paper is a medium for communication, so is television," Ms. Sklover says.

And there is the distribution question: Is anybody watching?

There are only about 100,000 cable subscribers in New York and most of them are a lot less interested in public access programs than they are in seeing the home games of the Knicks and Rangers, which are cable's biggest attractions here.

Nationwide there were at the end of 1971 about 2,800 cable systems serving six million subscribers, or only about 9 per cent of all television households in America, according to "On the Cable," a report based on an 18-month study by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation's Commission on Cable Communications.

The Sloan Commission also predicted, however, that by 1980 more than 40 per cent of American television homes would have cable service, creating a potentially vital role for public access channels in the communications process.

'Storefront Synagogue' Plans OKd

The Woodfield Jewish Congregation will receive a special-use variance for a storefront synagogue in Weatherway Shopping Center between Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way in Schaumburg if that village's board of trustees gives final approval.

Unanimous approval at a hearing by the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals for the interim synagogue included the stipulations that the congregation check fire regulations and that the variance will be just for this congregation and for this specific purpose.

EUGENE FELDMAN of Hoffman Estates, spokesman for the congregation, said the storefront will be used for religious classes and services.

Classes will be held three days during the week, from about 3:30 to 5 p.m., and on Sunday mornings. The congregation will hold services Friday evening and Saturday morning.

Feldman said about 30 to 60 children, age seven to 13, will attend the weekday classes. Younger children aged 5 to 7 will go to the Sunday school.

Approximately 50 to 70 people, primarily adults, will attend Friday and Saturday services.

The congregation needs a special-use variance because the shopping center is zoned for business. Sylvia Parsons, zoning board secretary, said the business category allows business and trade schools but does not mention religious schools.

James Teufel, developer of Weatherway, said he feels the synagogue will be an asset to the center and will bring more people to the shopping area.

THE ZONING BOARD raised questions about the adequacy of present parking spaces at the shopping center. Teufel said there are enough spaces and that the added cars will not affect other businesses.

Feldman said the congregation plans to build a permanent synagogue in about three years and if the storefront becomes too small for the number of children, the congregation will seek other quarters.

Chester J. Mayner, zoning board member, asked if there are any state guidelines for space per pupil and other facilities that the school must fulfill. Feldman said he didn't know of any guidelines the congregation has not already provided.

While the board did not include checking out the possibility of such guidelines in its conditions for approval, Mayner suggested the congregation do so before it begins classes.

There are 1,500 square feet in the storefront. The board believes this will be sufficient to meet fire department requirements. However, the board asked the congregation to check out exact fire department regulations concerning the number of square feet required per person.

The proposed storefront synagogue will be presented to the village board for approval Aug. 15.

Could There Be A Doctor Strike?

by ROBERT STRAND

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dr. Sanford A. Marcus wants physicians to belong to a union. So do an estimated 15,000 other doctors in several states.

Marcus is president of the Union of American Physicians, a new San Francisco area group that has attracted 1,000 members paying dues of $100 a year.

A mail poll conducted by the magazine Medical Opinion showed on July 9 that half of 752 doctors responding were both willing to join unions and to strike.

Why?

For one thing, the doctors say they aren't making enough money. For another, they are dissatisfied with so-called third-party-payers the insurance companies and government health programs now footing two-thirds of the nation's medical bills.

And they are looking for a weapon in case Congress adopts a national health insurance program, which many see as inevitable.

"Our three adversaries are insurance companies, the government, and the American Hospital Association, whose administrators aspire to become employers of all physicians by taking over new health care systems," says Marcus, a San Francisco surgeon.

FOR A BEGINNING, some of the dues collected in San Francisco may go for litigation under the National Labor Relations Act to win rights for municipally employed physicians who Marcus says earn less than plumbers. Other money will be stockpiled for the future.

Until recently, the union idea appealed mainly to interns and residents who long received the barest minimum for living. New York's Committee of Residents and Interns, which has 4,000 members, was founded in 1957.

But now the doctors who are unionizing are private practitioners, including both liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans.

As inflation pushed up the doctor's rent and personal staff costs, Medicare fees changed little, Marcus asserts, leaving some physicians' net income reduced. Then, the Federal Price Board restricted the annual increase in medical fees to 2.5 per cent.

"For example, I work the first 38 hours of the week just to cover my out-of-pocket overhead," Marcus said.

BESIDES TRYING to hold the fee level steady, private insurance companies and the government have given the physician the task of preparing endless reports. Increasingly, Marcus maintains the fees and report standards tend to restrict the doctor's options.

"I don't want some bureaucrat telling me that I can't keep a patient in the hospital for one more day, when I think it necessary," said Dr. John L. Holmes of Las Vegas president of a Nevada doctors' union affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

"The reason we need a doctors' union is not just financial — the long-term result would be better medical care."

Interest in collective bargaining jumped after the American Medical Association last January issued a statement that "the AMA is not and cannot be a union."

According to AMA lawyers, an AMA union would violate the Sherman Antitrust Act. Some other lawyers dispute this view, and note a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the point has never been made.

DURING THE AMA national convention last month in San Francisco, its new president, Dr. C. A. Hoffman, spoke strongly in opposition to unions.

"The source of power of unionism lies in its ultimate weapon— the strike," said the Huntington, W.Va., urologist. "A strike, even the threat of a strike, is a threat to withhold services. It is therefore a violation of medical ethics.

"And nothing, in my judgment, will more surely undermine our relationship with patients than a turn toward unionism."

But Marcus answers: "In other countries, doctors' strikes are not against sick people, but against the fiscal agent. Sick people always had access to medical care."

For the present, Hoffman's opinion clearly reflects that of the great majority of those who run the AMA. However, the leadership of the AMA, which includes slightly less than half the nation's 350,000 doctors in its membership, shows signs of changing.

While Dr. Russell B. Roth of Erie, Pa., the president-elect, disapproves of unions now, he says the situation may be different in the future. And Dr. Wesley W. Hall of Reno, Nev., the immediate past president, has said he finds nothing wrong with a doctor joining a union "as long as he takes care of his patients."

The Mosquito's Secret Ally

Although history may prove us wrong, it appears that for the Northwest suburbs this hot and muggy summer will come to be called the "Year of the Mosquito."

All summer the pesky creatures have been mounting ferocious attacks on suburbanites who are normally accustomed to spending some of their time outdoors.

This year, combinations of temperature and rainfall have made outdoor living difficult, if not impossible.

All this would be inconvenient but also ascribable to the whims of nature if another ally of the mosquito had not interfered. This year the mosquito's best ally seems to be another pesky creature, the politician.

Through a series of near-incredible moves and countermoves, the office holders who run the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and those who run at least one suburban community have managed to leave residents without responsive government.

The tale began earlier this year when two communities, Schaumburg and Palatine, passed ordinances banning the use of the chemical Malathion in both villages, claiming it was an environmentally cruel agent.

In effect, the ordinances were directed at the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District which uses the chemical in its spraying techniques. Neither village outlawed the District from attacking the breeding grounds of mosquitoes by draining or covering stagnant bodies of water.

But in passing the spraying ban, the politicians did not count on nature's perversity. This is a bounty year for mosquitoes and the residents of Schaumburg sought relief from the hordes by asking the village to allow spraying on an emergency basis. Schaumburg officials responded to citizen request and asked NMAD to spray.

Now it was the mosquite abatement district's turn to be tough. Officials there said no; no spraying without certain concessions from the village. These concessions would make the village's position in defense of its ordinance against spraying untenable, and the village refused.

Then came the most incredible of all moves by a local government. In response to pleas from Schaumburg residents to do something about the mosquito infestation, the Schaumburg board told these residents to go out and hire themselves a lawyer and sue the Mosquito Abatement District for failure to provide services.

At that point, telling residents to spend their own money for a lawyer was a poor suggestion. The Village should have taken independent action to help relieve the mosquito plague.

For its part, the Mosquito Abatement District has been less than gracious. Its job is to control mosquitoes and that simple task seems to have eluded the District this year to the point where response to the plight of residents of the district is secondary to its crusade to use Malathion where it pleases.

The District is also acting petulantly in refusing to spray certain streets in Hoffman Estates because they are too close to the borders of Schaumburg.

Where all this will end no one knows. Perhaps the best advice to give residents of the infested area is to point to a calendar and explain the first killing frost is only a few months away.

At best, this affair is a warning to suburban residents that local government sometimes puts itself in the precarious position of protecting a legal stance it has taken instead of saving residents from inconvenience.

At worst, the itch you scratch tonight may not be from just a mosquito; it might be a politician's way of saying this is not a local election year.

Neutrality's No Good

Recently added to the growing list of dead and wounded in the undeclared civil war in Northern Ireland were a Belfast news vendor and his wife.

According to police, two gunmen fatally shot Leslie Legatt when he tried to prevent them from setting a bomb in his shop. They then critically wounded his wife as she knelt screaming beside his body, then planted their bomb and fled. A passing motorist dragged the couple out of the shop before the bomb went off.

Nothing remarkable about the story, unfortunately. Such things have become routine since Catholic-Protestant violence erupted three years ago.

What makes this particular tragedy worth noting is the fact that Legatt apparently made the mistake of trying to be neutral in the conflict. According to neighbors, he was in the process of selling his newsstand and moving to England after receiving threats from both Roman Catholic and Protestant extremists because of what they considered his "moderate" views.

If the situation in Northern Ireland has reached the point where it is a sin to be a moderate, the outlook can only be for continuing and increasing violence. The first casualty in every civil conflict has been the voice of moderation.

As for Northern Ireland, it used to be said — not entirely jokingly — that if only the Catholics and the Protestants were atheists, maybe then they could get along like Christian gentlemen.

There are not only few atheists in Northern Ireland, but it is apparently becoming dangerous there even to try to love thy neighbor.

U.S. Dike Strategy

by RAY CROMLEY

Publicly, in the United States and around the world, President Nixon is being attacked daily for dike destruction in North Vietnam.

What isn't reported is that privately some officials in the Pentagon and in the White House are criticizing the President for not bombing the dikes "to bring the war to a quick end."

In recent weeks, this reporter has listened to off the record "why - won't - he bomb - the - dikes" arguments in fairly high circles in the government and to complaints that Mr. Nixon has recently given (renewed) "the strictest orders" that North Vietnam's dikes are not to be targets.

So what, then, is the truth?

This reporter understands from contacts in the Pentagon that the prevailing opinion among Defense Secretary Melvin Laird's top military advisers, including the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is that deliberate bombing of dikes would not be good military strategy. It would be counterproductive and would not bring the war to a quick end.

Even putting moral considerations aside, there is strong belief the dikes are not the most effective targets in this type of war.

One thing is certain. If the Air Force and Navy air were ordered to systematically destroy North Vietnam's dike system, the flooding this season would be tremendous and horrible to behold. There would be no hiding the fact. Not only crops would be destroyed. Hanoi and other North Vietnam cities and towns are on low-lying land. The flooding would outdo the havoc wrought by Hurricane Agnes to the northeastern United States this summer.

But dikes are being bombed as a part of target complexes. Major roads, rail lines, antiaircraft installations, military warehouses, power plants, munitions storage dumps and other military objectives are surrounded by, situated closely beside, or located on dikes.

And as this reporter has seen in three wars, bombing is frequently very inaccurate. The number of times bombers have hit their own troops or allies has never been fully reported. It is probable that some pilots, finding their primary targets inaccessible, have bombed here and there, randomly hitting dikes.

We do not know yet whether some other pilots have taken matters into their own hands.

But make no mistake about it, North Vietnam is having dike trouble. It will likely be deadly serious in the months ahead.

There was heavy flooding last year. This flooding caused widespread destruction of dikes. Many which held through these floods were seriously weakened and required extensive repairs.

Women today are two-thirds of the agricultural labor force in North Vietnam and that force has been stretched paper-thin. Because the Chinese withdrew their thousands of labor troops and because heavy casualties in the war in the South further depleted available manpower, dike repair has lagged. There have not been enough workers to spare.

Yet dikes historically have taken great amounts of manpower. In the olden days, it is reported, farmers were required to labor 60 to 120 days a year on public works to protect the fields.

This year's rains have further weakened dikes that last year's floods softened up. Even if there was no bombing in 1972, there still would be floods and considerable destruction in North Vietnam.

'Chess Is A War Game'

In response to the editorial which the Herald wrote concerning the Chess Grandmaster Bobby Fischer, printed in Friday's paper, I have come to the conclusion that the Herald staff knows nothing more about playing chess, than they probably do about playing tiddly-winks!!

Yes, the so-called "antics" of Bobby Fischer are meant to break the Russian champions cool, and offset his game. So what? That is one of the essential strategies of the game. Anyone who really intends to win at chess, uses that principle of psychological tactics in one form or another, perhaps without his ever knowing it. There is never a time when the psychological aspects of chess take a back seat to anything. It is the purpose of the game for one player to see if he can possibly "break" the other player into making a mistake, and then taking advantage of that and maybe winning the game.

Chess is basically a miniature war game, with two opposing armies facing each other on a prescribed field of battle. Chess has always been considered as a war game, even since it was first invented centuries ago for that purpose. And, as in an actual war, you must use every available method at your disposal to win, and tht includes using a large amount of psychological warfare to break the morale of the opposing army. So as it must be in chess. Not only must you be able to out-maneuver your opponent's pieces, but you must destroy him morally by keeping him so busy with advancing pieces, that he cannot possibly try and checkmate you.

With these tactics, Bobby Fischer appears to be having some positive effects on the Russian, because Spassky now appears to be irritated at everything Fischer does. About the fifth game, the Russian was complaining about everything from the way Fischer shows up late for the matches, to the way he keeps wiggling his left foot during his moves. So, for all intents and purposes, it appears that Fischer's "antics" have worked, and that he's beginning to crack the Russian. And observers watching Spassky play, even agree that he is having troubles comprehending what is going on around him, and his games recently prove it.

At the beginning of the matches, Spassky held a 2-0 lead on Fischer. Now, after six games, Fischer has gained a 3½-2½ lead over the Russian champion, and now with the better prospects for taking the World Chess Championship Title from the Russians. In fact, if Fischer continues what your Herald staff naively call "antics," and still manages to keep gaining the offensive spirit while in play, I predict that Bobby Fischer will capture the title for the United States for the first time in history, and take it away from the Russians who have held it since 1948. I will go even further than that, and predict that Fischer will win the title by at LEAST TWO games ahead of the Russian.

For your own information, chess in Russia is as nation-wide as baseballs here in the States. And when the Russians lose at chess, unlike us, they begin taking a very serious close look at their culture, because they think something must be wrong with it if they lost. If anything, when the U.S. challenger Bobby Fischer wins the title, it will create a huge upheaval and disillusionment within Russia, with a deepening of differences between our two countries, not improvements. By winning the title, the United States will be taking away from the Russians something they have always had, and are supposed to be the best at; and probably even fancy themselves originating. It would be similar to the Russians winning the World Series in baseball, even though they don't play, instead of the United States.

Drum And Bugle Stories Sought

I am writing to inquire why you do not have more coverage of Drum and Bugle Corps events in this area, particularly those of the Mount Prospect Guardsmen, which is sponsored in part by Mount Prospect area business and civic groups.

It is nearly impossible to find out when they and other corps like the Des Plaines Vanguards are appearing or competing in a contest. At present, the Guardsmen are competing in contests in Colorado and Minnesota, yet not one word of this has appeared in your paper, though I would think the community could take a certain amount of pride in this fine example of youth in constructive action.

The Guardsmen also will be competing nationally next month in Minneapolis for the V.F.W. title. I know this because I am the mother of three members of the corps. However, I am not writing this letter because of that, but rather because I have always been a fan of the Drum Corps and in the East, where I originate, much more publicity is done on them.

These corps are non-profit organizations run solely for the purpose of providing a constructive outlet for the energies of today's young people. And I'm sure you will agree that today such outlets are few and far between and sorely needed.

It may interest you to know that there are more fans of international Drum Corps than of high school sports, which you so amply cover.

I hope it is not true as my son sometimes says — "I guess in the Chicago area, Mom, you have to get into trouble to get any publicity."

Abortions Are Criticized

I don't agree with Mary Mozel of Schaumburg. It's not so simple as she states, "A baby should be a wanted baby."

How sweet and naive. How many of us would be here if our mothers had had abortions so conveniently offered to them as she advocates?

Too many women would be using this for any kind of reason, not always the proper one.

But, I guess I object most that, as usual, the innocent are the scapegoat for someone's stupidity or thoughtlessness. I'm not talking about rape, incest or a matter of life and death, which can be promptly terminated at the time the crime has been committed.

Once you legalize abortions you deaden sensitivity and compassion towards life.

We can't claim to be against the war killings and be for killing future generations. I think people like that are hypocrites and only want it for selfish reasons.

Thank You

Thank you so very much for the beautiful and well written article that appeared in the Schaumburg Herald last week.

It was really fun being a "celebrity" for a few days. My friends and family were all very impressed and my youngest son has a ready made "show and tell" for the fall.

Needless to add that copies of that particular issue of the Herald are now winging their way to relatives around the country.

Women's Movement Explained

In retaliation to Virginia Sandberg of Mount Prospect in the July 31 Fence Post and in defense of Women's Lib.

Yes, Virginia, there is a women's movement afoot but it is not teaching little girls how to dress sexy dolls for cocktail parties or insisting that mothers join the work force to earn that extra gold for a second car. These are not women's liberation ideas. Try reading the first two issues of Ms. magazine so you'll get a better insight into what the movement is trying to say.

I am not active in the movement, but I read much of the literature and most of you who comment unfavorably on the movement, do not know what you are talking about. Become informed — then you have a right to complain, if you still can.

The women who are working are not there because of any influence by women's lib. It is too easy to blame the movement for women's unrest and uneasiness at being trapped in the stereotyped role society has told her she must accept. Many women work because they have no choice — they are widows, or worse yet, divorced, abandoned by the male, which places her in quite another stereotyped role — that of being an easy mark for the male population.

All women should not be mothers just as all men should not be fathers, Virginia. If more fathers would share in the upbringing of their children instead of delegating it as "the wife's job," you would find the children more emotionally ready to cope with this world. When husband and wife share equally in caring for their children and do not "say one thing and do another" — there is where you will find happy children and a woman who can be content with her role. And not where a harried housewife has to do it all by herself. There have been enough people ruined by this stereotyped role to keep psychologists busy for years to come.

If Dad is the type who spends all of his home time drunk, or following the immature Playboy philosophy, or sneaking peaks up the mini-skirts of the young chicks, then turns around to criticize the length of his son's hair, how can he expect to have any rapport with his family? No, Virginia, working women do not cause families to fall apart but partners who are not equal or do not treat each other as human beings can sure screw up the works.

The women's movement is only trying to point the way out of the dreariness of being a stereotyped man or woman. When women are truly liberated only then will men know how great life can be.

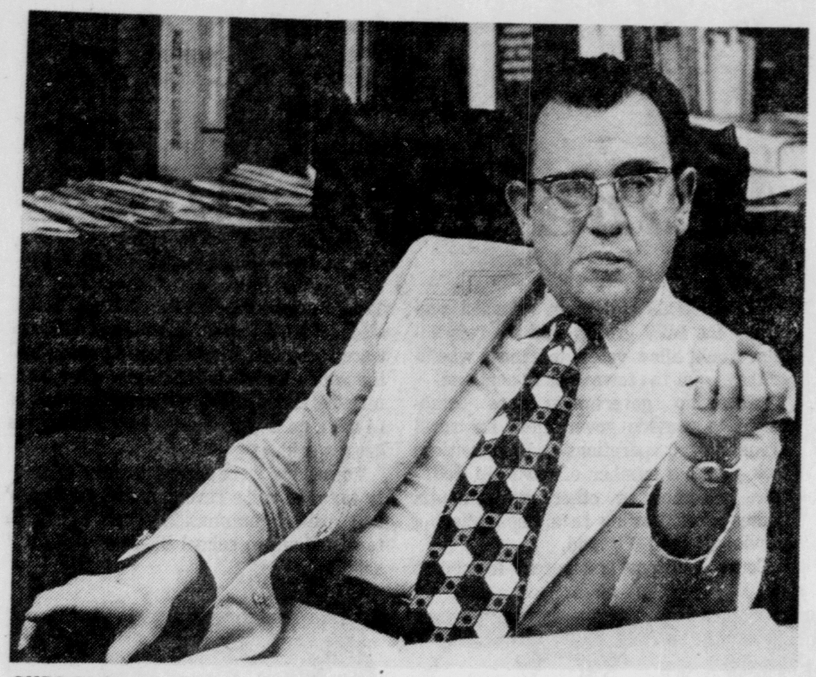
Rosenbrier Helps Pave Way

Hotel Industry 'Leaving Its Shell'



SURROUNDED BY a collection of books, architects' renderings and ther tools of his trade, Gilbert Rosenbrier conducts a staff meeting at his Arlington Park Towers office. As executive vice president and general manager of Madison Square Garden Hotel Inc, Rosenbrier seeks to popularize the hotel industry.

by LEA TONKIN

The hotel industry is emerging from its exclusive shell, according to industry expert Gilbert Rosenbrier. Reasonably priced service, efficient operation and a friendly attitude are contributing to this trend, he says.

Rosenbrier is executive vice president and general manager, Madison Square Garden Hotels, Inc. Based at Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights, he is also supervising the development of the new O'Hare International Towers at O'Hare International Airport.

"More and more in the hotel business, you have to appeal to the young, the poor and the women," Rosenbrier said with a smile. "People often have an image of a hotel as an exclusive accommodation. We are changing this image to popularize our hotels.

"Here at Arlington Park, we have a good combination with the theatre, the racetrack and the other facilities," he continues. People who might not otherwise visit the hotel are drawn by the variety of recreational facilities. Rosenbrier adds that once they've had a good sampling of the Towers' hospitality, they'll want to come back.

"FAMILIES ARE AIMING for more activities together," Rosenbrier said. Although motor hotels have captivated this market for some time, he says there is room for the hotel industry in catering to the family market.

"The biggest complaint for families is the expense of staying at a hotel," he says. "But families are finding that staying at a hotel can not only be new and exciting, but also offer reasonable rates."

Arlington Park Towers is enjoying 100 per cent occupancy on the weekends, according to Rosenbrier. "Weekend business is traditionally a problem," he says. "But we are making attractive rates for families on the weekends. They can escape from work and responsibilities without being too far from home."

These escape weekends offer couples a "chance to come back to their senses," according to the hotel executive. Swimming, golf and a new tennis club are some of the weekend activities available to guests.

PLEASING THE BUSINESS traveler is essential for a successful hotel, according to Rosenbrier. This means hotel management must find activities for the wives of businessmen as well as catering to company affairs.

"Efficiency is important," he says, "but you need to maintain a feeling of graciousness. It is an attitude, the willingness to be of service."

Travelers are finding that efficient hotel accommodations can save time and money, he adds. The company's new O'Hare International Towers will enable travelers to make short stopovers, conduct any necessary business and leave for their next destination, all in one day. "You don't have to go to a hotel just to have a good time," he says. You can also gain time."

The new hotel located directly across from the airport's passenger terminal buildings, will offer first class service and business accommodations. Extensive recreational and entertainment facilities will also be included. "We will be heavy competition for the downtown hotels," Rosenbrier said.

The attraction of the downtown area used to be the excitement," he continues. "Now some of the attraction is gone because of safety reasons." Travel time between the airport and downtown hotels is another reason why the traveler will choose O'Hare International Towers, he predicts.

A single electronic system will integrate all hotel functions. Visitors can avoid the usual delays of checking in or out of a hotel. People movers — mechanical sidewalks — will transport guests to and from the 10-story hotel, the terminal and a new 9,250-car garage under construction at the site.

Seven ethnic restaurants, ranging from a Balkan shish-ka-bob grill to an English pub, will offer a variety of dining facilities at the new hotel. Varying the price range, the atmosphere and the degree of formality in dining rooms is a drawing card for any hotel, Rosenbrier says.

A SHUTTLE SERVICE between the airport and hotel and Arlington Park Towers will offer a unique cross-pollinization of services. Rosenbrier believes that the O'Hare International Towers will set a trend in hotel development just as Arlington Park's resort image serves as a model of development.

The hotel industry is experiencing a fair-sized improvement over the trade last year, according to Rosenbrier. He sees the industry as a barometer of the nation's economic climate. "We were the first, along with the airline industry, to feel the effects when the economy slowed down," he says. "Now we are the first to pick up business."

Rosenbrier recently left for a two-week visit to several European nations. He plans to look into the market for new hotels in these countries. Madison Square Garden Hotels, Inc., operates the Acapulco Towers in Acapulco, Mexico, in addition to the two area facilities.

Rosenbrier was manager of nearby O'Hare Inn for seven years before he joined Madison Square Garden Hotels, Inc., in 1971. He was previously general manager of several hotels owned by the Hotel Corp. of America, now known as the Sonesta International Hotels Corp. He has operated several hotels in Switzerland, France and Czechoslovakia and a club complex in Canada.

ROSENBRIER IS A member of several professional organizations and serves as a director of the Chicago Hotel Association. He holds a certificate in hotel management from a Lucerne, Switzerland school and a master's degree in business administration from the University of Prague.

He has completed additional studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received a certificate of hotel administration from the American Hotel Institute, Michigan State University. A native of Toulouse, France, Rosenbrier speaks several languages.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — During the spring rumble about ITT Corp.'s abortive pledge to the San Diego convention bureau for the Republican convention it developed that ITT officials destroyed some records about the matter in an electric shredder.

That caused a sales flurry for the makers of office shredders, reports Mirris Golde of Electric Waste Basket Corp. of New York. It is one of a half dozen makers of these gadgets which have become more or less a necessity to corporations, universities, hospitals and large government departments in recent years.

The shredders come in many sizes from desk top models selling for $100 or less to giants costing $3,000 or more which gobble up tons of outdated printout records from computers and other mass printed material that for various reasons shouldn't be left lying around.

"WE ALWAYS BENEFIT in sales when there's a news item about wastepaper shredders," Golde said. "We even benefitted from a story about a costly error when a bank officer mistakenly had a batch of live checks destroyed in a shredder. The bank hired students to sort out the scraps and put many of the checks together again."

The wastepaper shredder industry developed during the late 1950s as government departments and business necessarily became more security conscious because of the increase in industrial and commercial espionage. Professional spies were finding office wastebaskets and refuse cans treasure mines of salable information. Out of them they culled such trade secrets as customer lists and product ideas.

Universities and hospitals became the next big customers because they accumulate vast files of confidential records about patients, students and other persons that would constitute an invasion of privacy if not properly destroyed.

GOLDE SAID the shredders serve other purposes.

"By destroying working papers, preliminary calculations and rejected documents of all kinds they eliminate or greatly reduce the possibility of such papers getting into permanent files and perpetuating erroneous or inadequate information," he expalined.

The shredder also helps in combatting air pollution. It makes it easier to get rid of huge amounts of wastepaper without burning it on the premises as so many firms used to do.

The shredder reduces wastepaper to a compact mass that is easily baled and more easily sold to wastepaper dealers for repulping.

So the machines help conserve pulpwood trees to" said Golde.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

Mutual fund performance for the first half of the year has taken an odd and perhaps ominous, turn.

An overwhelming majority of all funds slipped into the loss column during the April-to-June second quarter, despite the bullish ebullience on Wall Street and gains in the general market averages.

Among a total of 585 funds, 345 of them recorded net losses during the second quarter, according to performance data in the current "Mutual Funds Scoreboard," published quarterly by the Hirsch Organization, Old Tappan, N.J.

The figures are beginning to look like 1969-70 all over again — yet there is no general market decline to blame it on, or explain it. Dow-Jones index gained a respectable 4.4 per cent in the first half of the year — though the rise during the second quarter subsided to only 1¼ per cent.

WHY, THEN, should 59 per cent of the mutual funds suddenly tumble into the net loss column? There may be some subtler, more technical explanation, but the most obvious guess is that large numbers of them are now beginning to hurt from the heavy redemptions, and lack of sales, that have been plaguing most funds for many months.

This has been going on, in some funds, since early in 1971. Owners have been cashing in their shares, thus taking money out of the funds, faster than new investors have been buying shares and putting money in. This requires a fund to begin dipping into cash reserves, and if it goes on long enough, the fund will have to begin selling some of the stocks in its portfolio to raise the cash needed for redemption of shares.

This "net redemptions" phenomenon first became industrywide in June, 1971 — that is, redemptions for all mutual funds totaled more than sales for all mutual funds. As this problem of the funds continued month after month, a number of observers began to express concern about its possible effect on the entire market.

The mutual funds hold, generally, huge blocks of stock. If the net-redemption problems reach proportions that begin forcing the funds into heavy selloffs from their portfolios, say the worriers, dumping of big blocks onto the market could depress prices sharply — even send the market into a spin.

THERE IS no way of confirming whether this explains the sudden slippage of a great majority of the funds into a net-loss position during the April-June period. The fund managers deny — publicly — that redemptions have so far forced them into anything more than normal portfolio turnover.

But something strange is happening. The 585 funds followed by "Mutual Funds Scoreboard" averaged a gain of 8.8 per cent during the first quarter — and only 18 recorded a net loss at the end of that quarter. Then, three months later, it's revealed that 345 of them operated at a loss for the quarter.

Maybe it's just something seasonal. Then again, maybe it's the appearance of a small, black cloud on the horizon. It bears close watching by investors, or anyone whose finances could be touched by a turn for the worse.

5,000 Signatures Needed To Put Question On Ballot

3 LWV Groups Seek Vote To Abolish Maine Township

Three League of Women Voters groups are seeking a referendum vote in the November election to abolish township government in Maine Township.

The groups, which say township government is antiquated, wasteful and duplicates services of other governmental units, are circulating petitions this week in hopes of obtaining some 5,000 signatures to get the measure on the ballot.

Under provisions of the 1970 Illinois Constitution, townships can be abolished or merged through a referendum vote of township residents. Similar drives sponsored by the League of Women Voters (LWV) are under way in Niles, Northfield and Palatine townships.

LWV OFFICIALS say they do not know at this point if the abolition measure can be carried by a majority of persons voting on the measure itself or must obtain a majority of all votes cast in the November elections.

Michael LaVelle, attorney with the election department of the Cook County clerk's office, said from the preliminary research he has done so far, he believes the abolition measure can be carried by a simple majority of those voting on the measure itself.

LaVelle stressed, however, that he has not thoroughly studied the issue as yet and his opinion is not an official one.

The three groups working for the abolition proposal in Maine Township are the LWV organizations in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and Morton Grove-Niles. Neither Maine Twp. Supervisor William Ziehn nor Twp. Clerk Philip Raffe were immediately available for comment on the LWV's efforts.

League officials say they will need about 5,000 petition signatures to put the proposal on the ballot. Deadline for filing the petitions is Aug. 21.

IN A PRESS statement released yesterday the LWV groups said the referendum would allow voters to choose whether they want the townships to continue.

"Township government was established to provide government for rural areas. As incorporations and annexations took place, a number of township duties were assumed by other governmental bodies often leading to a duplication of services," the LWV said.

Court decisions and recent legislation have further eroded the role of townships, the LWV said. Township collectors were forbidden from collecting taxes and the resulting loss of the 2 per cent commission ended the traditional methods of financing township operations, the groups said.

Townships were forced to levy property taxes to raise revenues and no longer had excess commission funds available to distribute to school districts the LWV said.

Beth Tikvah Youths Enjoy Summer Camp

Young people from Beth Tikvah Congregation, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates, are swimming and water skiing and boating at Olin-Sang-Ruby Union Institute summer camp in Oconomowoc, Wis.

Twenty-one youngsters attended the first two-week session, and over fifteen are now participating in the final three-week session. The entire ninth grade Hebrew class has been attending the seven-week Pioneer Program.

In addition to usual recreational activities, the students have the opportunity to deepen their Jewish knowledge and values. The ninth graders speak only Hebrew to each other throughout the entire camp session. Rabbi Hillel Gamoran of the congregation is one of the camp faculty members for the ninth-grade group.

"In the camp is provided the opportunity for a full Jewish life 24 hours a day which has a great and lasting impact on the attitudes on life of the children," Rabbi Gamoran said.

Student Ensemble To Present Concert

"His Followers," a student group ensemble representing the St. Paul Bible College, St. Bonifacius, Minnesota, will present a sacred concert this Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 382 S. Mount Prospect Rd., Des Plaines.

The group offers a variety program of testimonies and sacred songs consisting of solos, duets, trios and mixed ensembles, as well as instrumental numbers. Their music will be a mixture of the traditional and modern in the field of religion. Traveling with the group will be Dr. Francis Grubb, newly appointed president of the college.

There will be no admission charge for the program, and the public is cordially invited.

'A Herd Of Elk In Your Front Yard'

National Parks: 100 Years And Going Like Old Faithful

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. — It's 6 o'clock in the morning when Gary McLaren gets up and the first thing he does is head for the living room in his cottage at Moose Junction. Through the picture window he looks over the broad basin of Jackson Hole; then abruptly rising before his eyes is the majestic Grand Teton, the tallest white-encrusted pyramidal peak of the Teton Range.

The ritual is the same every day. Gary never tires of the panorama.

"Every time I look," he says, "it's beautiful. It's like I want to make sure the mountains are still there. I never take them for granted. They're still as interesting as the first time I saw them."

That was 20 years ago when District Ranger Gary McLaren first took up his post at the headquarters of the Grand Teton National Park.

Twenty eight miles to the north of him on Highway 89, separated only by a narrow belt of forest land, lies Yellowstone National Park, the granddaddy of them all. Yellowstone was the first national park in the world and remains essentially 3,400 square miles of wilderness.

THIS IS THE centennial year. The occasion will be commemorated from Sept. 18-27 with the Second World Conference on National Parks, to be held at both Yellowstone and Grand Teton, with delegates from more than 90 countries attending.

The two parks plus five national forests surrounding them are equal in area to the three states of Connecticut, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Here one can still drink pure water directly from the Snake River or glacial-fed Jackson Lake, through which the Snake flows.

Here also is where Gary McLaren once started out in a pickup truck from Moose Junction and by the time he got to Jenny Lake at the base of the Grand Teton, seven miles away, the whole truck was full of discarded beer cans.

That was 15 years ago. Now 15 to 20 people do nothing all summer in the park but pick up roadside litter. Two trucks, in 12-hour shifts, are out constantly patrolling for waste.

"Now," says Gary, "many of the people are demanding of the country the right to go out and tear it up."

PRESERVING THE NATURAL state has been his life. Gary was born and raised in the Rockies of Colorado, where his dad was a park ranger for 36 years. He has two brothers in the park service, one at the Grand Canyon, another at Rocky Mountain National Park. Gary, who served with the 10th Mountain Division in Italy during World War II, has been a ranger more than half his life. He is 49.

At Grand Teton, he's in Resources Management and Visitor Protection, a euphemism for a ranger cop. His territory is 310,000 acres. Through it last year passed 3.2 million visitors (1972 figures are up 30 per cent).

And yet a visit here is the reaffirmation of nature untrammeled despite the incursion of man.

It is bolstered by the tranquility of a raft float on calm stretches of the Snake as it winds through the sagebrush of the Jackson Hole country in this northwest nook of Wyoming under the serene granite of Mount Moran with its year-round glaciers, and the other Tetons.

"Through mistakes made in places like Yosemite," says McLaren, "we've been able to see what's going on and avoid them. For instance, Yosemite proved to all parks that people like to have side distance in camping."

SO THE SAME grounds at Signal Lodge remain rustic and secluded. When the ground is denuded, as at String Lake, campers are forbidden and the area reverts to nature.

"The hippies," says McLaren, "came in with the idea they would stay all summer and forced the park to lower camp stays from 30-day to 14-day limits on one site."

From the window of his small office at the Visitor Center, Robert Woody can see the steam rising in progressively bigger puffs. Through it a spray of water jumps in spurts even higher until it reaches a summit of 130 feet.

At 1:05 p.m., Old Faithful has erupted, just as it has every 65 minutes since an intrepid trapper named John Colter, trying to elude hostile Indians, first stumbled upon the geyser back in 1810.

It is Yellowstone's most famous phenomenon, one of 3,000 geysers in the park. And around it has risen virtually a summer urban community to accommodate the 25,000 daily visitors who observe its regular gushing.

WOODY, A TALL, slender, studious-looking North Carolinian, is the ranger in charge of the Old Faithful station. He has been there since last October.

"This park is one of the best examples of wilderness left in the U.S.A.," says Woody, whose park service has also included the Everglades in Florida and the Civil War battlegrounds of Vicksburg and Antietam.

"People coming here should get away from the windshield experience." Meaning they should get off the 500 miles of road and onto the 1,000 miles of trails.

Yet this also leads to one of the hazards associated with national parks. One man has already been killed by a bear in Yellowstone while camping at an unauthorized spot.

"There is a reluctance of people to respect danger as associated with wild animals," says Woody. "They'll completely encircle a bull bison. I can appreciate their enthusiasm, but it's dangerous."

FOR HIMSELF, Woody best appreciates the winter where the snow gets so deep the roads are closed and the only way into Old Faithful is by oversized snowmobiles, called snow coaches. Some 25,000 people manage to get into the park's interior in a winter.

"With the big push in environment awareness," he says, "people have come to take a more appreciative view of parklands. All you've got to do is ride down the highway and see it."

In a day of riding through the park, along the crest of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, through the bubbling mud flats, past endless miles of forest and meadow, only one stray piece of paper was seen.

A ranger who spends all his time here gets an entirely different perspective of life.

"Where else," muses Woody, "can you walk outside the front door and see a herd of elk? Or be late for dinner because there's a buffalo grazing outside your vehicle and you have to wait for him to go away?"

Department of Interior film shown in special theaters surrounding Old Faithful closes on the following note:

"A complete natural experience is what Yellowstone is all about."

NATURE HAS ITS danger for man. Deep in the Otter Body snow field under the crest of Grand Teton lies a body entombed forever because in this country the glaciers cling to the mountain all year long. The victim was one of a party of 14 mountain climbers stranded during a surprise August snowstorm.

There is a ranger force in Grand Teton National Park which specializes in mountain rescues. Last year alone, six people were killed on the mountain, three of them while glissading — a hazardous form of skiing down a glacier, without skis.

Even in the winter when blizzards buffet the highest crags, hardy souls brave the climate in climbing attempts.

"We're proposing," says Glenn S. Everhardt, "that 110,000 acres of our park be placed in a wilderness mountain range."

EVERHARDT IS Grand Teton park superintendent. He's not consciously trying to deter mountain climbers. They'll keep coming, for the usual nonreason. The purpose is to preserve the virginal quality of the land.

"We have," says Everhardt, "a good clean park." And people know it. Since 1951, when visitor figures were first compiled, the traffic has risen from 640,000 to more than three million a year. They have brought attendant problems.

"We have a lot of cars," says Everhardt. "Are we going to continue construction of roads and parking areas, or are we going to use auxiliary methods, such as busing?"

Busing? Where man is concerned, some problems, it seems, are universal.

The Gutis: 26 Years Of Clowning

by KAREN BLECHA

Offstage, you'd never believe Elvira Guti has been a gorilla for 26 years.

It's hard to picture the attractive blonde bounding across a stage, scratching a hairy chest and climbing a bamboo coconut tree to avoid phony bullets. But she does it and sometimes three times a day.

"I made a monkey out of her," laughed Charles Guti, her husband and a leader of The Gutis, a slapstick jungle comedy act now appearing in the circus at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

Elvira was a secretary before she married Guti and joined the act. Their two children, Heidi and Peter, and partner Mickey Kitschke also are part of their vaudeville version of Tarzan and the Apes.

PERFORMING SINCE 1946, The Gutis have traveled all over the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Europe. They appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show twice and did a two-year stint with the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus. The group also has performed on the same stages with Buddy Hackett, George Gobel, Johnny Cash and Hugh O'Brian.

"The first time we were on the Ed Sullivan Show, Elvis Presley was on," said Heidi, 26, who first performed with the act when she was 5. "Elvis Presley, who was he? Now I wish I could remember him."

Heidi admits it takes "guts" to get up on stage dressed as a kangaroo or horse, only to be chased by your father, who resembles a jungle version of Oliver Hardy. She's thought about leaving the act, but always changes her mind. "I'd miss the travel," she explained.

Kitschke, a quiet, shy man, also enjoys performing. "I've gotten so used to it it just doesn't bother me anymore," said Kitschke, whose pants fall down during the act to reveal heart-spotted underwear.

The act has changed a little in past years, except for some polishing here and there. For instance, Elvira, dressed in her monkey suit, used to walk through the crowds. "But we've stopped that. It's too dangerous these days," said Heidi, explaining that some people in the audience tried to tear off the suit and have even pulled switchblade knives.

MOST AUDIENCES have been receptive to The Gutis. Heidi can remember performing only once in front of what she called a "hostile group."

"We were in Atlantic City and scheduled to come on before Smokey Robinson and the Miracles. The announcer said 'And now Smokey Robinson, but first the Gutis.' The kids weren't happy about that so we got through the act in about two minutes."

Business has been good for The Gutis and it's getting better. The act is independent and booked by a Chicago agent. Sometimes the bookings are so solid The Gutis leave a performance, hop into their campers and drive 2,600 miles straight to make it in time for a show at a county or state fair, or maybe a circus.

"Business is better here because people like to go out and see live entertainment," said Guti, a small compact man who started in vaudeville 46 years ago with his parents in Germany. "In Europe, it's not so good. The people are still crazy about the television and circuses are dying."

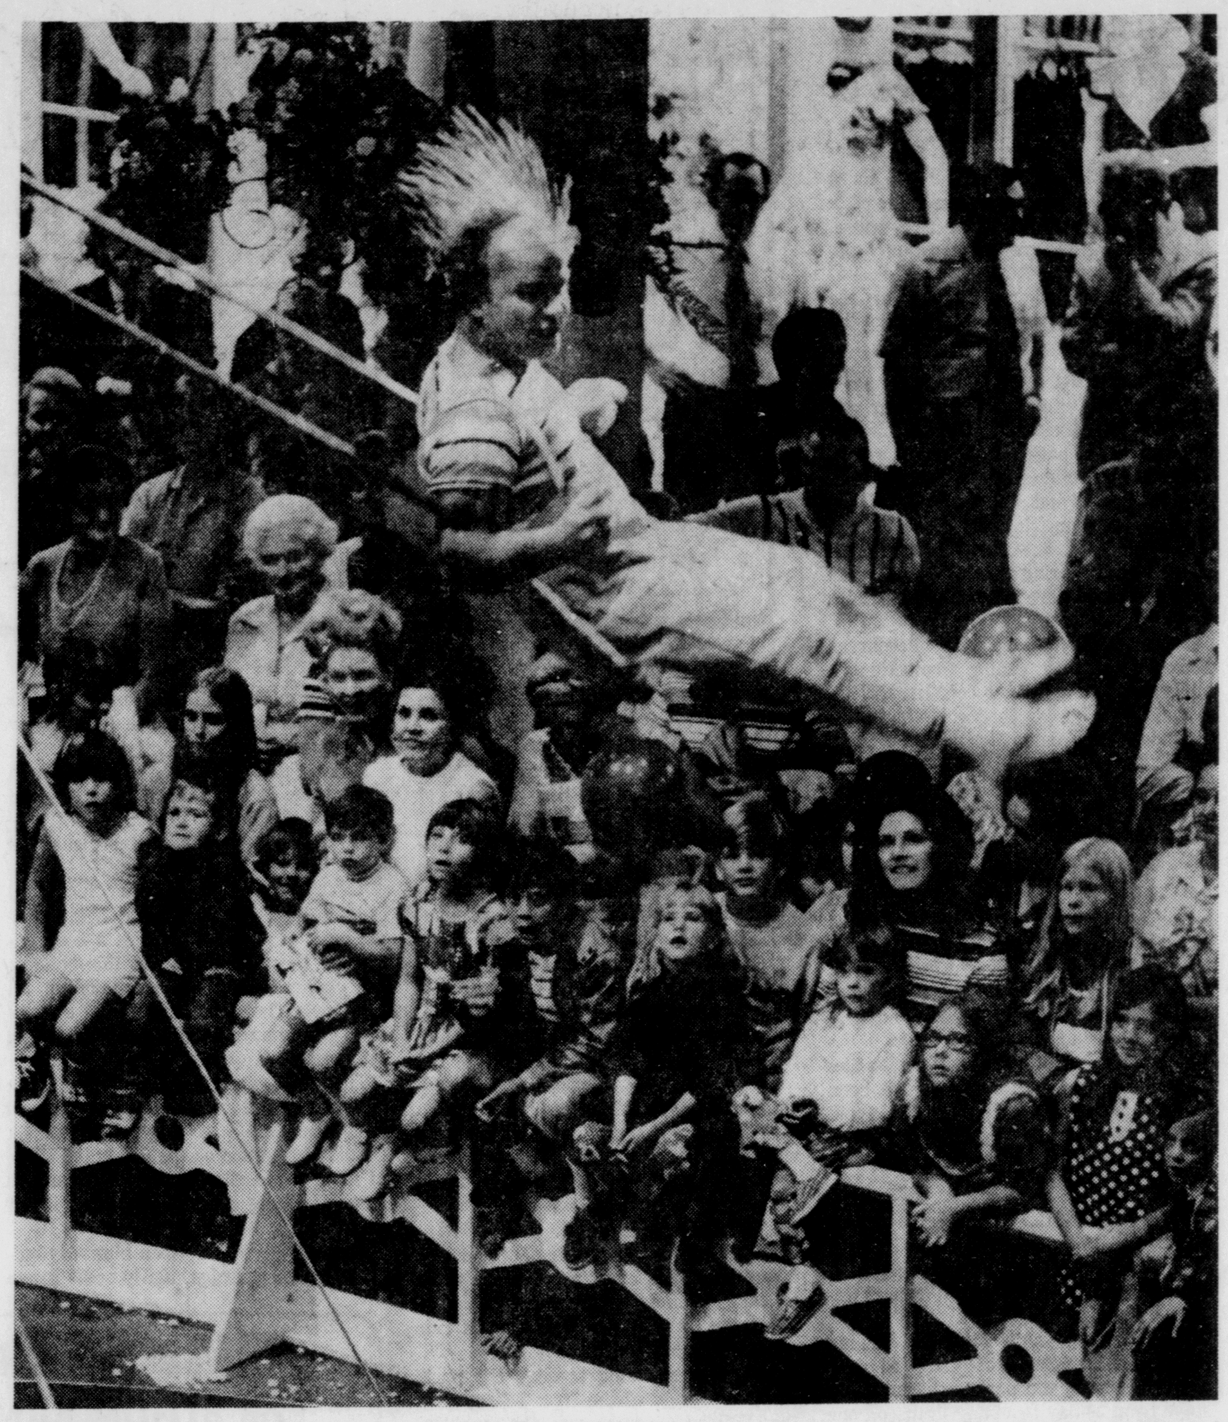
The Gutis' business agenda reads like a travelogue. Monday it was Park Ridge and they'll be in Mount Prospect until Sunday. Then they take off for Milwaukee, Belvidere and Rockford before moving on to Rhode Island, New York and Tennessee.

THE GUTIS ADMIT traveling can be hard on them. "Sometimes you drive along the road and see other people sitting outside on the lawn, resting and wish it was you," said Guti. "But then I get home and after awhile I am restless again."

Heidi got a grammar school and high school diploma through correspondence courses and Peter, 10, now is doing the same.

Heidi said that when she was a girl she sometimes missed having a more stable life. "For a while, I missed the parties and the proms. Kids used to envy me because I saw and met a lot of different people, and I used to envy them because they stayed home," she said. "But I enjoy it now, traveling around and meeting people. I've made more friends outside the business than in it."

Sometimes, she said, it's nice to go home to the family house in Hilton, a suburb of Rochester, N.Y. "We go there a couple of weeks each year just to make sure it's still there."



JIMMY TROY, billed as "the comedy king of the trapeze," amused youngsters yesterday at the circus in the mall of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect. Troy performed along with jugglers Gus and Ursula and The Gutis, a slapstick comedy act. The circus will continue through Sunday.

Sept. 1 Deadline For Homestead Exemption Filing

Senior citizens have until Sept. 1 to file their homestead exemption applications with the Cook County assessor's office.

The homestead exemption grants a discount on real estate taxes to property owners who are 65 years of age or older and live in their own homes as of Jan. 1, 1972.

Tax savings which can amount to more than $115 per year for a homeowner in Cook County are provided for by the exemption.

The amount of the exemption is computed by reducing the equalized assessed valuation of the home by $1,500 on the tax bills payable next year.

In order to qualify for an exemption, homeowners need a copy of a deed showing that they owned the home as of Jan. 1, 1972; a copy of a Medicare card or other document showing that the owner is 65 or older as of Jan. 1, 1972; and a completed homestead application form.

APPLICATIONS ARE available through Cullerton's office by writing to the Homestead Exemption Department or by calling that department at 321-6151.

Applications and supporting documents must be on file no later than Sept. 1 in order for a homeowner to qualify for the exemption.

Help in filling out the application forms is also available from Cullerton's staff.

Approximately 75,000 homeowners in the county have already applied for the exemptions. Cullerton predicts that more than 100,000 homeowners will apply before the deadline.

'Byner Hour' Needs Beefier Material

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Believing that the credibility of a television reviewer is strengthened by disclosure of his blind spots, I confess to being a pushover for impressionists.

A mimic doesn't have to be a polished pro like George Kirby to carry me in his hip pocket. I'll even cry "encore!" for my 10-year-old son's Flip Wilson routine, which I now have heard 736 times.

And any one of the nation's 10,247,836 W. C. Fields imitators can win my applause. So what if it does sound more like Zazu Pitts?

I MENTION ALL of this lest, on the strength of this review, you should pass up an Ari Onassis yachting party in order to stay home next Tuesday to watch "The John Byner Comedy Hour."

The second program in this new CBS-TV five-week summer series may not be all that good.

In fact, I'm not sure the first program seen last Tuesday at 6:30 - 7:30 p.m. CDT, was all that good either.

Perhaps worth breaking a canoeing date with Truman Capote. But yachting with Onassis, no.

During various monologues, musical numbers and sketches, Byner did impressions of Tony Bennett, Ed Sullivan, Groucho Marx, John Wayne, Barry Fitzgerald and George M. Cohan, among others. A veritable cornucopia of vocal Xeroxing.

CONCEPTUALLY, THE sketches were sound enough. I mean, who could resist a stroll down memory lane with Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello, "together again for the first time ever," complete with film clips from their glorious beach party movies?

If that wouldn't make you swear off nostalgia, nothing will.

Or how about a visit with an animal psychiatrist who sounds like Donald Duck? Or a sketch that shows how the movie priests of yeasteryear, Barry Fitzgerald, Pat O'Brien, Spencer Tracy, et all might cope with the youth of today?

But the material that fleshed out these worthy conceits was, alas, too flimsy to sustain them.

Even an impressionist is at the mercy of his writers and Byner has 10 of them, including himself. One of them should learn to impersonate Woody Allen's typewriter.

ROD LAVER, seeded No. 1, faces John Newcombe, the No. 9 seed, in a quarterfinal match of the CBS Tennis Classic to be broadcast on Channel 2 Sunday.

Bud Collins is the commentator for the tournament played at Sea Pines Plantation, Hilton Head, S.C. The tournament winner receives $10,000.

In his opening match Laver eliminated Nikki Pilic in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5. In the first set, Laver broke service in the fifth and seventh games. Pilic came back to break in the eighth and hold in the ninth, but Laver held his service in the 10th game to take the set. In the second set, Pilic's 3-0 lead was overcome by Laver, who broke his opponent's service three times to win. 7-5.

Newcombe reached the quarterfinals by defeating Charlie Pasarell two sets to one. He took the first set easily, 6-2, lost the second set, 6-4, and coasted to a 6-1 victory in the third set.

Air Compressor Fails; 300 Delayed

Train Breakdown Stalls Commuters

From 300 to 400 Northwest suburban commuters to Chicago were delayed 40 minutes in arriving downtown yesterday after a Chicago & North Western Ry. originating in Harvard, Ill, broke down.

The train which was traveling the railroad's Northwest line, was due to arrive at 9:19 a.m. It reached Chicago at 10 a.m.

The train's air compressor started to fail in the vicinity of Des Plaines, said a company spokesman. It failed completely at the Jefferson Park station, activating an automatic brake which prevents the train from moving if there is not enough air pressure in hoses, he said. Some passengers disembarked, catching CTA rapid transit trains, while others remained with the C&NW.

Crews contacted a later train, due to arrive in Chicago at 9:47 a.m. along the same tracks. When the second train arrived at Jefferson Park its air hoses were connected to the first, supplying enough pressure to release the brakes.

The passengers were told only that there had been an engine failure. But those in the first car overheard conversations between the engineer and conductor and the engineer on the second train. From what they heard, most believed the air compressor supplied power to the brakes, instead of releasing them. Several of what seemed to be test stops were made after leaving the Jefferson Park Station.

Those passengers seemed to enjoy the ride, although they were a bit nervous. Interspersed with occasional nervous laughs were comments like "I hope they can stop it at the station downtown."

'Keystone Cops' Chase Nabs Two

Two burglary suspects who escaped on their way out of court led Des Plaines police on a two-hour chase yesterday that was described by the presiding judge as a "Keystone Cops comedy."

The two men got away from a Cook County Sheriff's baliff at 11:30 a.m. while being brought from court in the Des Plaines City Hall to the police station located in the same building.

Richard Banks, 19, of 1828 Webster Ln., Des Plaines, and Terry Ingram, 22, of 132 N. Hale St., Wheaton, ran out of the unlocked rear entrance of city hall, 1412 Miner St . as baliff Lynn Fairbanks was escorting the pair back to the city lockup, police said.

THE KEYSTONE COPS comment came from Associate Judge Francis Glowacki. The judge's car, parked behind city hall, was damaged at one point when a patrolman hurriedly backed his three-wheel motorcycle into the side of the car while trying to turn it around to chase the escaping prisoners.

Ingram was captured hiding behind a garage at 1108 Walnut St. a half hour after off duty patrolman Jack Whetstone saw him walking down the street. Whetstone had originally arrested Banks and Ingram Aug. 24 for allegedly burglarizing two Des Plaines service stations.

Police squad cars and unmarked detective cars then spent more than an hour criss-crossing streets in central Des Plaines in search of Banks, who turned himself in to police at 1:30 p.m. He reportedly told police he ran to the Drury Motel, 374 Lee St., after his escape, and called his mother, who summoned a lawyer and returned him to the station.

Whetstone told the Herald that when he saw Ingram walking down Margaret Street he became suspicious because he knew Ingram had been in the custory of the Cook County Sheriff's police and wasn't scheduled for court until later in the day.

"I called the station and found out Ingram and Banks had just escaped so I got my service revolver and chased him through the backyards," Whetstone said.

He said Ingram was already captured by Patrolman Jack Muhs when he caught up. Muhs had been dispatched to the scene after Whetstone's phone call to the police station.

The pair had been brought up to the courtroom on the second floor of city hall. The court clerk determined when Banks and Ingram arrived in the courtroom, that the pair wasn't scheduled to appear until 1:30 p.m.

FAIRBANKS REPORTEDLY was returning the two to the city lockup and was about to open the door leading into the police station when they escaped.The station entrance is directly across the hall from the door the two suspects ran out, police said.

Banks and Ingram were not handcuffed at the time of their escape. Lt. August Schwiesow told the Herald the court has requested that no prisoner be brought into the court room with handcuffs on.

"I think that will be changed now. They weren't hearing felony cases here before, " Schwiesow said.

Yesterday was the first time the Third Municipal District of the Cook County circuit Court held felony cases in Des Plaines. Previously such cases were heard in Niles.

When Ingram and Banks were finally brought before Glowacki, their burglary cases were continued until Aug. 24 at 1:30 p.m. Glowacki also ordered an additional $2,500 bond on the pair and scheduled a preliminary hearing on charges of escape from custody for the same date as the burglary hearing.

Banks is now being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of a $17,500 bond for seven charges of burglary and escape. Ingram is also being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of a $12,500 bond on two charges of burglary and escape from custody.

New Control Tower Chief Named At O'Hare

Vincent J. Mellone has been named chief of the air traffic control tower at O'Hare Airport.

The appointment was announced by Lyle K. Brown, regional director of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Mellone, who is to assume his post in early September, replaces Daniel M. Vucurevich, one of the government's original group of air traffic controllers, who moves on to become tower chief at Burbank, Calif.

For the past two years Mellone has been tower chief at the El Toro Naval Air Station, Santa Ana, Calif., where the tower is manned by FAA personnel. He began his career in air traffic control in 1952 as an airman at the Hill Air Force Base, Ogden, Utah, and became a U.S. Air Force tower chief with the rank of staff sergeant at Otis AFB, Falmouth, Mass.

MELLONE LATER SERVED in various air traffic control positions in San Francisco and Oakland Airport Towers and as project officer for terminal planning in the FAA's Western Region. He studied political science and public administration in 1967-68 at Syracuse University and obtained his B.A., summa cum laude, at California State College, Long Beach, in 1971, with a major in history and a minor in political science. He has been working on a master's degree in political science at California State.

Mellone, 39, has been with FAA since 1956, and has received seven outstanding performance awards and two letters of commendation for his contributions.

Joann's System: Good Ol' Intuition

by JOANN VAN WYE

Starting with the premise that there is no scientific way to pick a winner, I headed out to Arlington Park Race Track ready to put my intuition to work.

A novice at the track, I couldn't see wasting my money on a Racing Form and the rest of the paraphernalia people were trying to pawn off on me. I figured a 35-cent program coupled with my intuition would do just as good and save me some money.

System? Sure I had a system, but it was a far cry from that used by the track veterans.

PROGRAM IN hand, I first checked out the horses' names. I figure a horse with a good sounding name is a pretty sound bet. I'm partial to horses' names that alliterate or rhyme, like Reaping Raider and Lotta Botta. Reaping Raider failed me on this method finishing fourth but Lotta Botta finished second returning $3 on a $2 bet.

Next come the horses' numbers. I like odd numbers best and seven is my number.

The number system didn't fail me. Odd numbered horses were my forte and seven my lucky number. Of my eight winners, three were number sevens and six had odd numbers.

The real test of the numbers system came in the seventh race when I bet on number seven who was racing in a field of seven. The horse, City Lynx, finished first but a steward's inquiry and jockey's claim of fault resulted in his being bumped to third. Regardless, he still ended up paying $4.20 on my $2 show bet.

By the time I had gone through the names and numbers, I usually had my bet secured or the field narrowed down to two or three horses. The final determining points were the color of the jockey's shirt and the initials on his back.

WHEN THE horse's owner's initials, which appear on the jockey's shirt, match those of the jockey it is as sure a bet as anything the racing forms will turn up. This coincidence only occurred once when Armed Bupers, owned by Miller Farms, MF, was being ridden by Marty Freed. The combination brought me a $5.40 return on a $2 show bet.

As to colors, I was a little lerry of horses being ridden by a jockey in pink. Yellow is my favorite color but in the absence of yellow, I settled for any bright color or my college colors of green and white.

But even my system had its shortcomings. Following a photo finish for third place in the first race where my horse had to settle for fourth, I thought I had a sure thing for the second race and a way to win back my losses. I hit upon the name Youth Passport and then everything clicked in place. The jockey was wearing yellow and had my initials, JV, on his back. As if that wasn't enough, it was the number two horse in the second race.

It looked like such a sure thing I was tempted to put down $2 to win but settled for a $2 show bet. Well, it didn't matter. My sure thing finished second to last.

When the same jockey came up in the eighth race wearing the same shirt I put another $2 down out of principal. This time the horse finished second.

WITH ONLY one win behind me before the sixth race and my funds dwindling, my system finally started coming through. I picked seven paying horses in the next four races.

Then I started getting risky and putting as much as $6 down on three horses in a single race. This was high rollin' for me.

Realizing no system is invincible and no horse a "sure thing" I stuck with $2 show bets. The veterans warned me I would never get rich with the show bets but by this time I wasn't listening. I've seen them tear up win ticket after win ticket.

The final outcome was a 20 cent profit, and a vow to consider myself lucky and put my system to rest for the remainder of the season.

Railbird's-eye view.

Ken's Had Enough: 'I Ain't A-Handicappin' Anymore!'

by KEN KOZAK

I have had enough. I am abandonging the system. I will no longer work within its bounds.

I have put my trust in it time and again, and each time it has coldly, rudely betrayed and embarrassed me.

Worst of all, it is costing me money. That alone is sufficient cause for revolution.

Power to the people! Up against the wall, money filchers! I ain't a-handicappin' anymore!

What I'm talking about is horse racing and betting and handicapping systems. There. It's out in the open, and I'm glad I said it.

Handicapping the nags can be described as madness with a modicum of method holding it together, preventing it from falling apart in mere anarchy. I have seen the madness. But the right method continues to escape me, teasing like the light at the end of a never-ending tunnel.

THE BASIC ingredients of handicapping include the following: weight allowances, speed ratings, class, past performance, horse's age, horse's sex, conditions of the track, distance of the race and other mundane and esoteric considerations.

Then when all these factors have been weighed and considered for one horse, the interpretation has to be matched up and played off against all the other horses in that race.

If, by that time, you have not been grabbed by men in white coats, fitted for a straitjacket and hustled off the racetrack premises, you should have found the Holy Grail: a SURE THING.

And you calmly walk up to the $2 window, pay your money and take your choice, and sit back and wait for the returns to roll in, secure in the knowledge that you have considered all factors, employed the scientific method and come up with a winner.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS. To test the system, I and a womanly colleague — a rank newcomer to horsing around at the racetrack — decided that we would spend a day at the races.

She, knowing nothing about horses and handicapping, would use what might charitably be called woman's intuition to make her selections.

I, on the other hand, being the grizzled, wizened veteran, would chart my selections with the care of a monk translating an ancient religious scroll.

To paraphrase an old sports writer, whose name eludes me at the moment, I should have stood in bed.

We descended on Arlington Park for the moment of truth. I was armed with a copy of the Daily Racing Form, the compleat handicapper's Bible, Koran, Talmud, and tree of knowledge of good and evil.

HERE'S WHAT happened.

First race: It was what is known as a maiden race, which means none of the horses running had ever won a race. That can make selecting a winner difficult, because the horses in a maiden run are usually closely matched.

But then there was Kindleloom. This horse, a three-year-old bay gelding, was ready. He had finished close seconds his last two times out and was a good speed horse for a short, six-furlong sprint race.

At 7-1 odds, he would return a smart $16 for a $2 investment.

Apparently Kindleloom didn't realize how good he was. He came in third, five lengths behind the leader, an improbable sort that hadn't raced in three-and-a-half months. Two dollars down the drain.

I don't want to talk about the second race. What can you say about a favorite that died, and came in tenth?

But I got on the scoreboard in the third, with a $2 show bet that returned $3.20. Slim pickings, but a start. And my betting opponent hadn't won anything yet.

THEY STARTED hammering the nails in my coffin in the fourth race. In rapid succession I lost the fourth, fifth and sixth races. When I went to place my bet for the seventh, I would have sworn the tellers were nudging each other, grinning and whispering, "He's back again."

The losing horseplayer, in my estimation, is the paranoid's paranoid.

(While I was launching my backwards run toward destiny, by the way, my female partner and former friend was winning two out of three playing her "by gosh and by golly system" — "by gosh, that's a cute jockey; by golly, what a pretty horse.")

The racetrack got in the spirit of the times in the seventh race and began recycling my money back to me. I bet seven and won back seven. Big deal.

On the eighth race I made my biggest mistake of the day. The mistake was not one of selecting the wrong horse. It was one of betting foolishly.

TIE HORSE, Irish Faberge, was, in my opinion, the best horse on the card all day. And this one knew it. He led the whole race, and won by three lengths.

That returned $6.20. One of the secrets of winning at the track is knowing when to bet big. This was one case that demanded a maximum investment, say $10 or more. But by that time I had not only lost my money, but my courage as well, and settled for a $2 ticket.

If you aks me about the ninth and last race, I will plead amnesia. If I recall correctly, my $6 bet went down the tube on a horse that shall remain nameless. And the last shall be last. By 13 lengths.

This is how the betting battle turned out: I lost, she won. She had six winners in the last three races.

And if you ask me if I am reformed, I will tell you no lies. I am not reformed, but I have changed.

I have burned my racing form and scattered the ashes beneath the $2 window. My handicapper's scratch sheets have been destroyed.

And I have a new system.

. . . eye of newt, toe of frog . . .

. . . wool of bat, tongue of dog . . .

Double, double, toil and trouble . . .

What looks good in the daily double?

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would greatly appreciate it if you would answer my questions. I stopped menstruating abruptly when I was 42 years old and I am now 47. My husband and I would like to know if it would be safe for us to stop using contraceptives. Do you think there would be any chance of my getting pregnant again? That's the last thing we would want because our family is grown up and married.

Dear Reader — Every woman, particularly in your age group, should have a regular examination by her doctor. One reason is for the early detection of cancer of the cervix, which can be cured if found soon enough. Another is for examination of her breasts. During such an examination, a doctor can do a test which tells him what the nature of the cells are that line the vagina. This helps in identifying whether the woman has sufficient female hormone or not and therefore is an index of the function of her ovaries.

I don't like to tell any woman that she can't get pregnant unless she has had an examination and series of studies. It's always possible. However, I must add that it is most unlikely that a woman who has gone through the change of life and has not menstruated for two years would get pregnant. Some women who are not menstruating have not, actually gone through the change of life. This is one reason an examination by the doctor is indicated.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My mother is 50 years old and she is going to the hospital for some tests. A CBC, SMA, and EKG, Please tell me what these are.

Dear Reader — A CBC means a complete blood count, which includes counting the number of red blood cells and looking at their characteristics, counting the number of white blood cells and separating them into the various types of white blood cells plus looking at their characteristics on a slide. In most laboratories it also includes measuring the hemoglobin for iron in the blood to be certain that there is no anemia.

The SMA is a term for an automated method of measuring the different chemical elements in the blood, like the blood sugar. With one small sample of the patient's blood, the analyzer accomplishes many tests which used to be done laboriously by hand by laboratory technicians. It essentially provides information concerning chemical balance and chemical content of the body.

An EKG refers to an electrocardiogram, and is properly called an ECT. the older term EKG arises from the fact that much of the early electrocardiographic study was done by German speaking people and the word for heart in German is Kardio, as opposed to the English cardio. It is of course a measurement of the electrical activity of the heart to detect heart disease.

How Demos Can Win: Let George Do It-Alone

by DICK WEST

Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks to a series of fortuitous developments in the early stage of his campaign, Sen. George McGovern is now in a position to pull the political coup of the century.

The lucky break he got in the matter of a vice presidential running mate has brought the White House within his grasp.

If he plays his cards right with respect to the vacancy created by Sen. Thomas Eagleton's resignation as the Democratic vice presidential candidate, McGovern can insure a victory in November.

All he need do is leave the vacancy vacant.

THINK OF it! McGovern simply lets second place on the Democratic ticket remain blank and invites the people who vote for him to write in their own choices for vice president.

Talk about your brilliant strategems — a veepless presidential candidate would galvanize the electorate in three important ways:

1. The do-it-yourself approach would appeal to political scientists and theoreticians who have strong misgivings about the way vice presidential nominees presently are chosen.

With rare exceptions, vice presidential nominees are anointed by presidential nominees. This may be better than winning them in a Bingo game, but it freezes out the rank and file, who prefer to make their own mistakes.

2. As the first rule in medicine is "do the patient no harm," the first rule in nominating a vice presidential candidate is "do the ticket no harm."

This above all — find a running mate who will not handicap your own campaign. Which isn't easy to do.

BY FAILING to name a replacement for Eagleton, McGovern would rid himself of the vice presidential encumbrance for the duration of the campaign.

3. Millions of voters long to have a voice in the election of vice presidents and would leap at the chance to improvise on the Democratic ticket.

This powerful urge to name your own veep was vividly demonstrated at the recent Democratic convention.

Although the McGovern forces were in firm control, and McGovern's anointment of Eagleton was known to all delegates, the vice presidential roll call produced votes for 74 other individuals, including Archie Bunker, Martha Mitchell and Roger Mudd.

Imagine, then, the glorious outpouring that an open ballot national election would produce. It would truly be a blow for democracy, and McGovern would win in a veepslide.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Lots of people play bridge for relaxation but the ones who play good bridge don't relax when actually playing their cards.

It is just a cinch for South to relax and win the first diamond trick with the ace. The contract looks ironclad so why think? If he makes that play he is likely to wind up cursing the gods of chance.

He enters dummy with jack of spades and loses a trump finesse. West leads a second diamond and East is on lead with the king. Now if East shoots back a club South will play low. West will take the queen; get out with a card in any other suit and wait for the setting trick with the club king.

Bad luck indeed. Three cards out of three wrong but unnecessary. South loses nothing by ducking the first diamond. The suit is continued. South wins; enters dummy with that same jack of spades and loses that same trump finesse. West has no way to get his partner on lead.

South wins the return; manages to ruff dummy's last diamond; draws two more rounds of trumps; cashes the spades; leads a club; finesses his nine and shows West his hand.

West has to lead away frm his remaining club honor or give South a ruff and discard. Simple, once South stayed awake at trick one.

OAKLAND CAME OUT AHEAD

Dear Fans Forum:

I read the other day again where someone said both teams benefited greatly when the Cubs traded Kenny Holtzman to the Athletics for Rick Monday. I checked the averages and see where Monday is hitting a booming .257 with the staggering total of 29 runs-batted-in. Holtzman has been on the All-Star team and he won his 14th game the other night. I'll still say the Athletics got the best end of that deal, and I hope Kenny has many great seasons with Oakland. With Durocher out, Holtzman would have had a great year with the Cubs.

NOT A FAIR COMPARISON

Dear Sirs:

Big deal. So the Cubs outdrew the Sox when they were both home the same day last Saturday.

Cub fans forget that (1) Whitey Lockman was making his debut as the Cubs' manager (2) the Cubs were coming home for the first time in a while (3) the St. Louis Cardinals currently are a much better attraction than Kansas City (4) the Sox had an exceptional crowd under the lights on Friday night bucking the All-Star football game and (5) Sox fans are more geared to night baseball anyway and Saturday afternoons always draw lousy crowds.

I don't deny that the Cubs have a faithful following, but the Sox are on their way and there is no way anyone can argue that those Saturday day games were an accurate comparison between the groups of fans.

Go, Sox. Once the novelty of a new manager wears off with the Cubs, wait until you see those September crowds when the old-timers remain well off the pace. Go, Pirates.

Harry Dennington
Mount Prospect

WHY REST RICHIE?

Dear Herald:

I agree with the reader who wrote to say that White Sox manager Chuck Tanner is overrated. Although Tanner seems to do a good job of motivating his players, he makes a few moves that make no sense whatsoever.

For example: Last Thursday (July 27) the Sox played Kansas City in a twi-night doubleheader. For about the third or fourth time this season, Tanner kept Richie Allen on the bench for the second game. The excuse always is that they want to keep Allen rested and he doesn't like to play both games of doubleheaders. Who is he anyway, the owner of the franchise? This is showing too much favoritism and you can bet the players will begin to resent it soon.

It was ridiculous to bench Allen for the second game for these reasons:

He had just had three complete days of rest out of the last four because of the All-Star break, even though he played in the game.

He had hit two home runs in the first game.

He is not old, only 30, and is the type of strong, muscular player who should have some endurance. (Bob Love of the Bulls, who is much skinnier, plays every minute of almost every game and pro basketball, I dare say, is a lot more rugged test of endurance than baseball).

Most important of all — many of the fans who pay their way into the park do so just to see the team's only superstar and possibly the best player in the game. They must have felt gypped when he didn't play and may even be mad enough not to come back. I know that if I had gone to that game, I would have demanded my money back.

Wake up, Tanner! The Sox finally get a superstar and you won't even make full use of him.

"GREAT"(?) NEWS

Dear Sirs:

I see where the White Sox have a new contract to have their games televised on Channel 44 next year. This must be great news — to the 0.01 per cent of Sox fans in the area with crystal sets and 50-foot aerials.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

THE RECRUITING AND subsidization of college athletes dates back to near the turn of the century and has been denounced for almost as long.

Forty-five years ago, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Training termed these practices "demoralizing and corrupt." Many an educator has openly voiced his agreement with this since then, and so have some college administrators and even coaches, who were fed up with the recruitment rat race.

Adolph Rupp, retired University of Kentucky basketball coach, called recruiting "the most detestable thing" in college athletics.

No subject in sports has aroused more furor, more zealously guarded secrets, than the game of luring prized high school and junior-college athletes to big-time varsity teams.

However, the intense drive for prestige and dollars mounted by colleges today has spurred a madder and madder scramble for star athletes. Coaches universally despise recruiting, but they also recognize the coach who gets good talent is the coach who wins.

The man in the crossfire is the head coach. His very livelihood — and those of his assistants — hangs precariously on how skillfully they sign youngsters who can satisfy "win or else" demands by backslapping, dagger-wielding alumni.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association now has a new set of recruiting guidelines for all members, effective Tuesday of this week.

It was typical that the announcement I saw while on vacation was buried in some newspaper. Whenever there are new rules set up on the recruiting of high school athletes, there seems to be a feeling that they may look good on paper but they'll never work in actual practice. So why get excited and play it up out of proportion?

Actually, the rules will work if the coaches want them to work. Unfortunately, coaches don't always trust each other. Many insist their rivals are breaking rules all the time.

The new NCAA rules, adopted at a January convention but officially put into effect Aug. 1, are designed to save money, save the coaches' time and remove some of the nonsense from the recruiting business. Fine. That sounds great.

Will they work? Will the coaches make a sincere effort to make them work? These are the obvious questions right now in this business of pursuing the blue-chippers, a business that forces coaches to beat the boondocks for talent if they expect to keep their jobs for long.

Somewhere out there in this Herald area, in this state, as the days dwindle down to those precious few before the start of another high school sports season, there are youngsters who will be hustled vigorously by the colleges, the 280-pound high school tackle with good lateral movement and a thirst for contact or the basketball center who can slap the rim with ease.

These are the boys who should be aware of this new NCAA legislation, significant legislation to tighten recruiting rules and cut costs. They must know what to expect when the frantic chase begins, and it is about to begin again.

The new five-point program in the NCAA is:

1. The school cannot contact a high school star before the boy's senior year in school begins. This obviously should save the coach many, many hours and considerable money. The boy and his family will be spared scores of visits from persistent staffers, and this should mark the end of the summer party for top athletes who just finished their junior year.

It's been standard practice in some sections to throw a big summer party at a mountain or lake resort where the assembled prep stars and girl friends have a big time, check to be picked up by the school. Once this began, the idea spread like wildfire. That ended Tuesday according to the new rule.

2. Only one expense-paid campus visit per school is permitted for each athlete (the limit was two) — unless he enrolls in a junior college, whereupon he may visit the campus later.

3. The recruiter who goes to call on the prospect in the latter's hometown can spend money only on himself; that is, no entertainment of the boy or his parents. The committee also recommended a school's visits be limited to two, but this was rejected.

Under this rule, there will be no more steak dinners in the local restaurant. There have been cases where the shrewd high school star brought not only his parents and girl friend but friends and more friends . . . and the recruiter paid. One night a recruiter from a Southeastern Conference school came into a Birmingham, Ala., restaurant with a locally famous football player and ended up feeding 14 in all.

4. Recruiters cannot transport relatives and friends of a recruit anywhere, except within the prospect's hometown.

5. Recruiters must entertain athletes at the institution's campus only, although the rule has been more broadly interpreted by an NCAA official to include the community in which the campus is located. "What this eliminates," said one coach, "is a school, say from Los Angeles, spending vast sums to fly a kid to San Francisco for dinner."

Schools obviously will search for loop holes in these new rules. Schools obviously will find some. It's a brutally competitive business and the coaches are looking for that "edge" which could mean the difference when the swift, strong 280-pound tackle makes his final choice.

Those who advocate still stiffer crackdowns find it's much easier to carp than to cure. The problem: even the best of rules can be circumvented.

Each conference has heard extensive interpretations of these rules, but it has been pointed out repeatedly that it is almost impossible to write a rule that can't be misunderstood or misinterpreted.

Meanwhile, the recruiting game is getting set for another whirlwind year. It is college sports' game of all seasons, played by hundreds of the fastest-talking salesmen this side of Madison Avenue.

There is encouragement, however, in this new NCAA legislation which went into effect this week.

Constructive reforms are desperately needed because, love it or loathe it, recruiting is here to stay.

Cook's 9th Inning Double Gives Lions Opening Win

by TOM CARKEEK

Mike Garbus didn't have his sideburns short enough so Logan Square head coach Larry Nomellini had to start ace pitcher Mike Cook in Garbus' customary left field spot.

Cook responded with a clutch two-out double in the last of the ninth Thursday to drive in the winning run as the Lions pulled out a tense 4-3 victory over Calumet City in first-round action of the Cook County Legion baseball tournament.

The win placed Logan Square in the unenviable position of having to play again last night, this time taking on host Northbrook, with only about four hours rest. The score of last night's game, as well as all future Lion tournament contests, will be available by dialing 394-1700.

Cook, one of a trio of outstanding Lion hurlers, started in left field after Garbus was not allowed to play because his sideburns extended below the bottom of his ear. Legion tournament rules stipulate that sideburns must not appear below the bottom of the ear. So Cook took over.

The tall left hander slapped a George Demopoulos offering up the right-center field alley to knock in Craig Zander with the Lions' fourth run of the game. With one out in the last of the ninth, Zander walked. Tom Chapman beat out a bunt down the first-base line putting runners at first and second, but then Ken Martin popped out and the prospects of an extra-inning ballgame only a couple hours before the evening contest loomed imminent.

But then Cook delivered his only hit of the day to push Logan Square over the top.

Logan headed into the ninth with a 3-2 advantage, but watched it evaporate when Nick Rencich reached on a fielder's choice and Demopoulos clubbed one of Martin's pitches deep to right for an RBI triple. Martin got out of the inning when shortstop Jim Bucaro and catcher Chapman teamed up for a great play, gunning down the burly Demopoulos on an infield roller. Rick Zondor popped up to end the inning.

The Lions benefitted from four Calumet City errors, all of which fit directly into Logan scoring innings. In the third, Zander led off by striking out but the pitch got away from catcher Kevin Marich and Zander took first. He was forced by Chapman, but then Martin walked to put two men on. After Cook fanned, Bucaro was safe on Rencich's error, allowing Chapman to tally the game's first run.

Zander started off another Lion rally in the fifth by reaching on Mark Zondor's error and taking second on a wild pitch.

Mike Cook

Then Chapman, attempting to bunt, bounced the ball off the corner of the plate and saw it shoot up in the air over a charging Demopoulos. The Cal City pitcher recovered it and hurriedly tossed to first, but overthrew the bag and Zander scored.

Frank Reczkowski got the losers on the board when he lined an RBI single to left in the sixth and Calumet City tied in the seventh on Rencich's bloop single.

But the Lions came back to take a 3-2 lead in the eighth when Bucaro was safe on Reczkowski's error, Stan Bobowski lashed a long double to right, and Ed Collins singled Bucaro home.

Martin struck out 10 even though he allowed the same number of hits, but was at his best in the clutch. In the third, for instance, the little lefty gave up a double and a single but then struck out the side. Demopoulos, standing 6 4, 215 pounds, was not as fast as Martin and was touched for two runs and four hits in the last two innings.

Collins and Chapman, both of whom have been on hitting binges recently, came up with two hits apiece to lead the Lions' attack. Chapman also scored two runs.

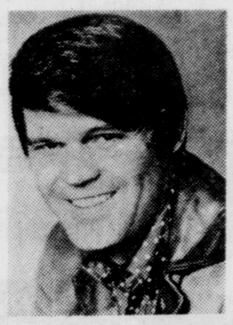
Trevino Visits Chicago Area In Cancer Benefit

Lee Trevino



Glen Campbell

Wally Phillips

Lee Trevino, fresh from his second consecutive British Open championship, is coming to the Chicago area Monday, Aug. 14 as leader of a celebrity parade in a fund-raising golf exhibition to benefit the American Cancer Society.

The Merry Mexican from El Paso, whose dramatic victory at Murifield, Scotland, blocked Jack Nicklaus' bid for an unprecedented grand slam of golf, will be joined by three popular playing partners in the event at Thorngate Country Club in Deerfield.

Also playing in the 18-hole charity match will be Glen Campbell, television and recording artist who sponsors his own tournament on the professional golf tour; former Chicago Bear Johnny Morris, now a sportscaster on WMAQ-TV; and Wally Phillips, morning show host on WGN radio.

Besides the golf exhibition, announced at a press luncheon at Thorngate Country Club, fans attending the event will be treated to a long-ball driving contest among local press and sports personalities and drawings for a new car and other valuable prizes.

Local Cancer Crusade Chairman Harold Sortor said, "Thanks to the cooperation and generosity of these stars, we are assured of providing Chicago-area golf fans a day of excitement. Everyone who attends the exhibition will be helping save lives through their donation to the American Cancer Society, while at the same time enjoying some outstanding golf and a lot of laughs watching Lee Trevino, Glen Campbell, Johnny Morris and Wally Phillips."

Pretty Paulette Breen, Chicago model and actress, has been selected to serve as official "Tee Girl" for the day's activities.

Spectator tickets at $5 per person are now on sale through North Shore Jaycee organizations and at all Ticketron outlets. The ticket entitles fans to watch the driving competition starting at 10:30 a.m. between members of the press, radio and TV and players and coaches from Chicago professional sports teams. This is followed at 1:30 p.m. by the 18-hole exhibition between Trevino, Campbell, Morris and Phillips.

Approximately 300 "VIP" tickets also are on sale at $100 each through the Chicago Unit of the American Cancer Society, 37 S. Wabash Ave., (372-0471). This donation entitles ticket holders to the driving contest and exhibition, plus a buffet luncheon in the Thorngate clubhouse, free parking at the club, a golf clinic conducted by Trevino, followed by dinner and entertainment. The four participants in the exhibition, as well as many celebrities taking part in the driving contest, will attend the luncheon and dinner.

All ticket holders will have a chance to win a 1972 Dodge Colt station wagon, an Admiral color television set, one of four sets of Faultless woods and irons, an Electrolux vacuum cleaner, or a variety of other prizes donated by local firms.

Leaders of volunteer committees handling arrangements for the exhibition were announced at the press breakfast. These included Robert Doran, general chairman, and Phil Emmons, vice-chairman. Both are with Griswold-Eshleman Co. Earl Collings and Matt McBride, both of the Golf Products Division of Abbott Laboratories, are in charge of the golf exhibition committee. Arrangements chairman is Bert Hams, manager of Thorngate Country Club. N. P. Crockett of Ernst & Ernst is ticket chairman. Jack Taylor of WGN-TV is heading up the celebrity golf driving contest.

The likable Trevino last weekend became the first golfer to capture back-to-back British Open crowns since Arnold Palmer accomplished the feat a decade ago. On the way to his one-stroke victory over Nicklaus at Murifield, "Super Mex" sank four chip shots from off the greens. The clincher was a remarkable 30-ft., downhill chip out of deep heather and thistle to preserve par on the tournament's 71st hole.

Besides his skills with woods, irons and putter (last year he won the U.S., Canadian and British opens), Trevino also is known for his good-humored antics on and off the course that make him a favorite of golfers and non-golfers alike.

When the chip shot dropped on the 17th hole Saturday, he flipped his club in the air and said to his caddy, "That's the straw that broke the camel's back." Interviewed following his win, he equipped, "There's a woman in Dallas who's a second mother to me, and she always told me, 'God is Mexican.' "

Trevino also is recognized as one of the sports world's most charitable stars. After winning the 1971 British Open, he donated $2,000 to an orphanage in Southport, England. And he's made similar contributions to worthy causes while competing in tournaments here.

L'Nor Cleaners Gains Spot In Paddock Links Tourney

L'Nor Cleaners will represent the Arlington Friday Night Golf League in the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament Sunday, Aug. 20. L'Nor currently holds a four-point lead (65½-61½) over second-place Schiefelbein Construction.

Last Friday's special event was low putt night, and the winner in Flight 1 was Reuben Escamilla with only 12 putts. Bob Helfers and Dick Cross tied for the leadership in Flight 2 and 13 apiece, while Ken Jordan ruled Flight 3 at 15. Speedy Wissen needed 14 putts and led Flight 4 while Russ Knight's 13 putts was good enough to win Flight 5.

Escamilla carded the low gross for the night with a sparkling 38 while Knight's low net 32 took honors in that category. Jordan registered a birdie at No. 8 while Jon Hernandez birdied the sixth and John Oliver the ninth.

Tourney Entries Arriving

Nine golf league secretaries — take one step forward. Here are your medals for exceptional promptness.

Mailing in the names of the top teams in their respective leagues along with an entry fee for the upcoming Paddock Publications Golf Tournament were these speedy scribes:

Roland Hanke — Roselle Men's League, John Rice — Mount Prospect Tuesday League, Scott Johnson — American Can Co. League, John Bennett — Chemplex League, Emil Moestue — Arlington Friday League, Michael Grant — Arlington Friday Twilight League, Erwin Kokes — Mount Prospect Friday League, Bob Scott of Union Oil Tuesday and C. W. Lennon of Union Oil Monday.

These men have assured the teams that were leading their respective leagues as of last Saturday a berth in the Sunday, Aug. 20, inter-league handicap golf tourney at Golden Acres Country Club.

All teams which occupied first place as of July 29 qualify to play in the 23rd annual classic. Now it's up to their secretaries to fill out the entry blanks (names of the top foursome, the five best scores by each, an alternate and his scores and the par of the nines they shot them on) and send a check for the green fees to our offices at 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, 60006. The deadline for mailing the entries is Saturday, Aug. 12, so don't delay.

This month's 18-hole showdown will have the largest field ever. Last week's record-breaking total of 34 entries has ballooned to 36 with the addition of the Central States Telephone League from Arlington Country Club and Honeywell Inc. of the Buffalo Grove Golf Club.

These foursomes will be shooting for these prizes:

- A large traveling team trophy for the sponsor.
- 4 silver Revere bowls for the champions.
- 4 trophies for second and a like number for third.
- 8 golf passes for the foursome taking fourth.
- Dozen golf balls each for low gross and low net.
- $100 cash award for hole-in-one.

Two years ago at Thunderbird Country Club in Barrington, an ace was recorded. So the 144-man field should be trying especially hard on those par 3 holes at Golden Acres.

The following 36 leagues are planning to participate in the tourney:

Arlington Country Club — Arlington Elks Club, Central States Telephone, Desota, Inc., Ekco Products, Inc. and Friday Nighters.

Mount Prospect Country Club — The Monday, Tuesday and Friday Nighters.

Rob Roy Country Club — Tuesday Nighters, St. James, Fastex, Universal Oil and St. Alphonsus.

Golden Acres Country Club — Western Electric three leagues, City Products, Chemplex, Twinbrook YMCA, Parker-Hannifin and Hoffman Estates Men.

Buffalo Grove Golf Club — Sara Lee, Buffalo Grove Men and Honeywell, Inc.

Old Orchard Country Club — Scratch, Profexray, St. Colette's, NSMA and Arlington VFW.

Palatine Hills Golf Club — American Can Co. and Union Oil Monday and Tuesday.

Thunderbird Country Club — Arlington Heights Twilighters and Countryside YMCA.

Bartlett Hills — Roselle.

White Pines Golf Club — Tioga VFW.

Wheeling Tops Meadows For Unofficial Crown

In what could be called the unofficial battle for the Mid-Suburban League summer baseball title, hosting Wheeling defeated Rolling Meadows, 9-5, Friday.

The two teams' final game of the Northwest Summer League left the Wildcats with a sparkling 16-3 record and the Mustangs right behind with a 13-5-1 overall record.

Wheeling took command in the second on a run-scoring single by Howie Brower. But Meadows bounced right back with three in the third. RBI s were collected on singles by Marc Klemp and Jack Lloyd and a fielder's choice by Bruce Hanson.

The 'Cats countered with one in the bottom of the third. Jerry Geimer drove one in with a fielder's choice.

Wheeling exploded in the fourth on two lusty swings of the bat. Bob Peter cracked a three-run homer and Pat McGinn came up with a two-run double. A wild pitch made it 9-3.

Meadows scored singletons in the fifth and sixth. Hanson rapped in one with a single and Len Link drove in another with a fielder's choice.

Bill Kozel was the winner in relief of Peter. Keith Goeske was the loser.

SCORE BY INNINGS

Rolling Meadows	003	011	0—5- 6-0

Over 18 holes Irene Pinkos won with 89, Mary Bullwinkel had a 93 and Kathy Denzinger totalled 110.

Set Dates, Sites For Bowling Tests

Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap bowling tournaments for 1973 will be held Jan. 20-21 at Beverly Lanes, Arlington Heights, for men's leagues; and Jan. 27-28 at Thunderbird Lanes, Mount Prospect, for women's and mixed leagues.

Koufax: Strikeout King

During the last six years of Sandy Koufax' Major League baseball career (1961-1966) his strikeout totals never dipped below 216. Three times he topped 300, with 382 in 1965 the most ever in modern baseball annals.

Par 71 On Closing Round Gives Winter Junior Title

Bob Winter, Buffalo Grove's talented golfer, posted an even par 71 over the very tough Midwest Country Club course in Oak Brook and captured the annual Illinois State Junior Tournament Wednesday.

His 292 total was three strokes better than Doug Fort and John Malin, the runners-up in the three-day tourney.

Heading into the final round of the 36-hole final day, Fort was the leader by virtue of his 71. But while Winter was matching par, Fort faltered to a 76 and disaster.

Winter, one of 15 area golfers who played in the Northern Illinois Men's Amateur Golf Association sponsored event, ballooned to a 76 in his opening round on Monday. This left him five strokes off the pace.

Coming back with a 72 on Tuesday helped him survive the halfway cut. His two-over par 73 in the morning round on Wednesday kept him in contention until he charged home with the low round of the afternoon and the title.

Dave Ross of Des Plaines, Ray Peterson of Arlington, Tom Schnell of Mount Prospect, Steve Sluka of Arlington, Kerry Walter of Arlington, Calvin Zimmerman of Arlington, Steve Anderson of Mount Prospect, Jim Arden of Palatine, Mike Brawley of Mount Prospect, Bruce Conroy of Arlington, Vic Incenelli of Mount Prospect, John Haack of Arlington and Joe Kuzyk of Hoffman Estates.

Hoffman Estates' Dave Love was the only other area performer in the top 20. His 309 total was good enough for a tie for 18th.

Finishing outside the top 20 were these golfers from the area:

Some of these same youngsters will be competing in the sixth big stop on the NIMAGA tour when Silver Lake in the south suburbs will host a tourney today. Thirty-three area boys will be seeking both trophies and qualifying spots for the NIMAGA Championship later this month. Their teeoff times are as follows:

SENIOR FLIGHT

Front Nine — Dave Black of Mount Prospect (7:45), Scott Anderson of Arlington and Chris Dilger of Hoffman Estates (8:00), Harry Kramer of Palatine (8:23), Vic Incinelli of Mount Prospect (8:53), Mike Brawley of Mount Prospect and Terry McDonald of Arlington (9:15), John Nelson of Mount Prospect and Terry Neid of Prospect Heights (9:37), Scott Nordli of Mount Prospect (9:45), Ray Peterson and Steve Sluka of Arlington and Tom Schnell of Mount Prospect (9:53), Mario Vitale of Prospect Heights and Kerry Walter of Arlington (10:30), Craig Calkins of Mount Prospect (10:53), Brian Brown of Palatine and Mike Fitton of Arlington (11:00), Dave Nelson of Mount Prospect (11:07), Jim Arden of Palatine (11:15), Rich Carlson of Mount Prospect (11:30), Bill Thomas of Mount Prospect (11:45) and John Haack of Arlington (12:15).

JUNIOR FLIGHT

Front Nine — John Lonergan of Palatine and Dave Love of Hoffman Estates (1:00), Todd McDonald and Randy McGovney of Mount Prospect (1:07), Greg Reeves of Prospect Heights (1:37), Rick Sargent of Buffalo Grove (1:45), Norm Schwartz of Mount Prospect (1:53), Jim Sobczynski of Palatine (2:00), and Gary Willert of Mount Prospect and Cal Zimmerman of Arlington (2:30).

A total of 149 seniors and 39 juniors will be vying for trophies and titles. Just one more qualifying tourney remains before the big playoffs.

MOST PEOPLE BUY IT BECAUSE IT'S A VOLVO FIRST. AND A STATION WAGON SECOND.

To spend good money for a wagon while ignoring the car that pulls it around is to put the cart before the horse.

Our Volvo 145 customers see things in their logical order of importance.

First: a Volvo has adjustable bucket seats for any body up to 6'6"; four-wheel power disc brakes; six coats of protection against rust; eight steel pillars to surround five human passengers.

Second: with the back seat down and the tailgate closed, our wagon will hold a 74" sofa. Or enough luggage for Swedes who travel more than any other Europeans.

So if you need a wagon, see us. We'll show you a Volvo.

Flotilla Marks Anniversary

Flotilla 3-6 of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary celebrated their first anniversary July 17. All the members will participate in a cruise on the Illinois River to commemorate the occasion. They will meet at Morris, Ill., Saturday.

The Auxiliary are a group of people who assist the United States Coast Guard in promoting safety on the water for all recreational boaters. They also teach classes in the local high schools and parks, in boating safety and sailing.

Examining boats in the Courtesy Motorboat Examination program and awarding a decal to the ones that meet all the safety requirements for the Federal and State Governments is a big job during the summer months for most of the auxiliarists.

Watch your local newspapers for information regarding Courtesy Motorboat Examination Stations for trailerable boats and Basic Seamanship or Sailing Classes in your area.

Flotilla Commander David Edgecomb invites all who are interested in learning more about the Auxiliary to their meetings held on the third Monday of each month at the Batchelor Officers Quarters, Glenview Naval Air Station.

GLENVIEW CHRYSLER-PLYMOUTH has introduced the "Glenview Crown Newport," created especially for their customers. This special car features a custom vinyl Landau roof with the attractive "Opera Windows" shown or "RoundPort Windows." A limited number of these cars are available for immediate delivery.

Woodfield To Feature Rod And Custom Cars

It takes time and money to custom-build a car, and visitors will be able to see why at the Aug. 10-13 Rod and Custom Car Exhibit at Woodfield. The multi-level enclosed shopping center is located at the intersection of Route 53 and Golf Road in Schaumburg, just off Interstate 90.

Spectators will be treated to an array of about 20 automobiles equipped with chrome exteriors and chrome-plated engines, crushed velvet and button-tufted interiors, wide tires, and candy apple and metal flake body paint.

The cars are intended for everyday street use, and some can travel at speeds up to 200 miles an hour.

Co-sponsors of the show are Schultes Experimental, 9201 Milwaukee Ave., Niles, and Restorations Unlimited, 408 Lincoln, Fox River Grove. Owners of the cars will be present to answer questions.

Most of the cars have a pre-World War II body style, and one has the body of a 1923 Ford roadster. Some late-model cars, like a 1966 custom Chevy II, will also be displayed.

Among the participants and the cars they're displaying are Otto Schultes, 9201 Milwaukee Ave., Niles, 1966 Corvette custom Stingray; Jerry MacKove, 730 Crest Ave., Elk Grove Village, 1923 T-Ford Roadster; Ralph Morey, 300 Raupp Rd., Buffalo Grove, 1931 Ford coupe; Raymond Morey, 300 Raupp Rd., Buffalo Grove, 1940 Ford sedan delivery truck; William Simon Jr., 1701 N. 3 Local Girls In Golf Tourney

Three area residents will be among those girls competing in the third annual Junior Girls Golf Tournament in conjunction with the 11th annual Women's Amateur Golf Tournament at Midwest Country Club in Oak Brook today.

The three are Shari Landon, 741 S. Burton Ave., Arlington Heights; Meg Hayles, 518 HiLusi, Mount Prospect; and Linda DiVall, 708 WaPella, Mount Prospect.

The Junior Girls champion will be awarded the Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie Traveling Trophy at the Awards Banquet Friday evening.

The Northern Illinois Women's Golf Association has initiated this tournament to stimulate and develop interest in golf among girls through age 19, regardless of proficiency.

Legion Champ Repeats

West Covina (Calif.) repeated as the 1971 American Legion baseball champion after also winning the national title in 1970. West Covina was only the third team in history to win back-to-back national championships. A Cincinnati team recorded the feat in 1957-58 and an Oakland delegation succeeded itself in 1950 after winning in 1949.

PONY LEAGUE

National League	000	022	050—9-5-1
American League	000	010	102—4-5-3

The National League took advantage of 10 walks and five wild pitches to gain the victory in the league all-star game. Art Heeg was the winning pitcher. Joe Lewinski doubled for the winners and Joe Hannon matched that for the American League.

Orioles	000	010	00—1-9-1
Giants	200	010	00—3-7-1

The Giants took this first game of the Pony League World Series. Winning pitcher Mike Simkus effectively scattered nine hits, allowing seven of them only after two were out. Tom Martino was the hitting hero for the Giants, doubling twice and driving in the two first-inning tallies. Joe Cerrito doubled for the losers.

PONY LEAGUE

Giants	053	201	20—13-11-5
Orioles	400	503	3—15-15-3

The Orioles came from behind to win the second game of the World Series and even up the playoffs at 1-1. The big blow was Wally Swiercz' grand-slam home run in the fifth. Bob Cerrito pitched in with two doubles and Joe Cerrito had one. For the Giants, Dan Gallagher tripled and Tom Martino and Jim Dillon doubled.

Giants	220	010	00—5-7-2
Orioles	000	001	20—3-5-2

The Giants won the World Series two games to one and are Pony League champions for the second straight year. Bill Strobel hurled a five-hitter for the victory over Bob Stillings. Strobel, Tom Garrison and Scott Simandl all lashed two-base hits for the Giants while Stillings and Greg Schmoll each doubled for the losers.

MAJOR LEAGUE

Indians	000	000	—0-3-2
Expos	000	10x	—1-1-1

The Expos got their only hit of the game in the fourth inning and parlayed it with two Indian errors to post the game's only run. Bill Schimbke was the winning pitcher and Greg Rodway suffered a tough defeat. The ball left the infield only four times.

Expos	362	500	—16-14-2
Indians	000	200	— 2- 4-4

The Expos sewed up the Major League Wrold Series with two consecutive victories. Bill Schimbke slugged two home runs, Darin Thune powered one homer and Mark Vondembach homered once. Dave Brumm threw a four-hitter for the win.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Sox	000	322	—7-10-2
Indians	000	020	—2- 0-4

Danny Taylor allowed two runs but did not surrender a hit as the Sox picked up the win in the first game of the divisional playoffs. Matt Furlin doubled twice and George Tuzil had one double for the Sox. Greg Rodway took the loss.

Indians	011	000	000	1—3-3-3
Sox	000	020	000	0—2-6-3

The Indians evened the series at 1-1 with a tense 10th inning triumph. Winning pitcher Scott Stickloret helped himself by blasting a home run in his first trip to the plate to give the Indians a lead. Mike Somogyi was saddled with the loss.

Sox	001	003	—4-5-3
Indians	001	42x	—7-8-3

The Indians, down 1-0, put together seven runs before squelching a last-inning rally by the Sox to win the third game of the American League playoffs and advance to the World Series with the Expos. Greg Rodway and Tom Tavolacci, who was the winning pitcher, both doubled for the Indians. Doubles by Danny Taylor and Matt Furlin in the sixth were not enough to lift the Sox to the win.

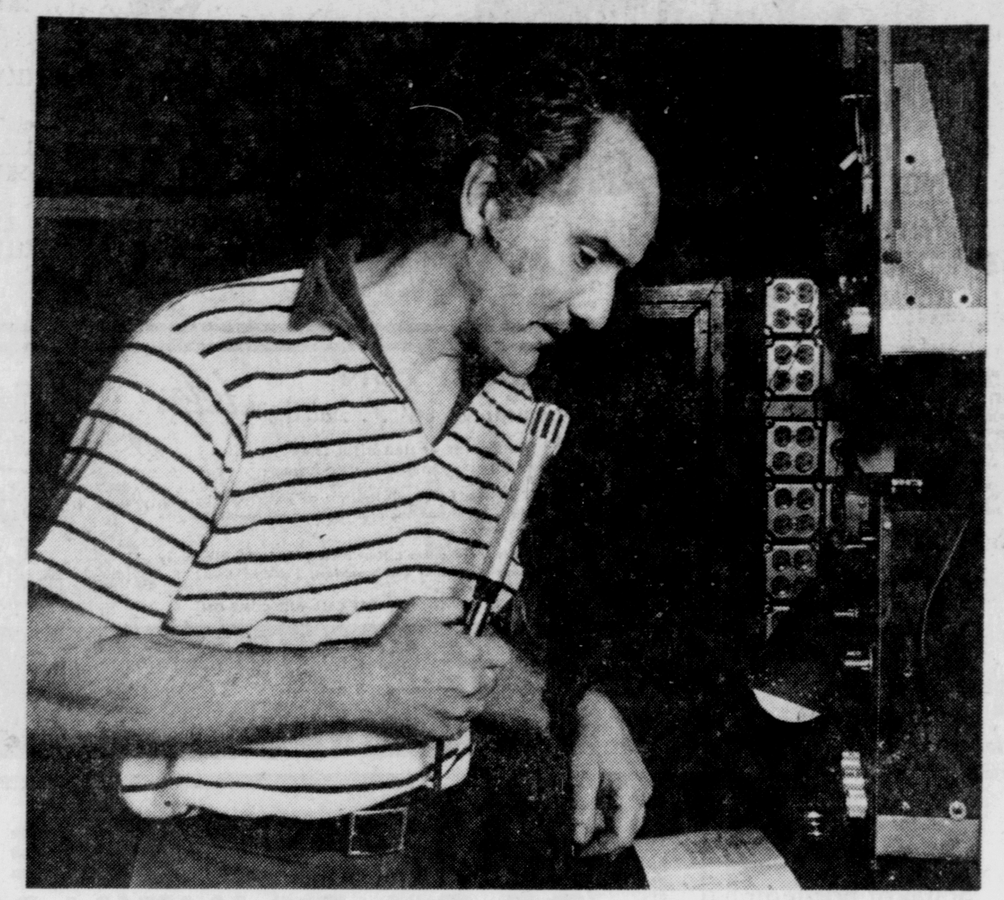
AUTOMOBILE ROW OF THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS!



DAVID MORRISSON, who labels himself a "theater man," peruses the evening's script and gets everything squared away before curtaintime. Morrisson's wife, an actress, also helps out at This Place.

FOLLOWING THE FINAL curtain, the Rosehip String Band provides the second feature of entertainment for the evening. Different bands are scheduled each weekend. Drinks are served continuously and Morrisson, upon request, has begun having food available after each play performance.

'This Place'

Nobody Knows What It Is . . . But It's Fun

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Photos By Bob Strawn

Medley

No one knows exactly what "This Place" is. Not even director and manager David Morrisson who comes closest to a tangible definition with the simple label . . . a fun place.

The St. Charles night life spot takes in an unrelated spectrum of things to see and do, from actively participating in a show that explains the wonders of hypnosis to catching an old W. C. Fields flick or arriving in time on a Saturday night for a live stage production immediately followed by musical entertainment.

And there are those Monday nights set aside for just doing your own thing. Doubling as auditions, they often unearth new talent.

THE COVER charge is light, only a $1 a head leveled week nights and $2.50 for theater tickets on weekends.

In fact, the only foolproof means of knowing what's always happening at "This Place" is through being on the mailing list and receiving the weekly newsletter that announces the future bill of entertainment.

"We really don't know what we are," laughed David Morrisson, who with a small staff of three operates "This Place."

Anyone else connected with the "cabaret theater - pub - nightclub" (and many people are involved), is a volunteer worker laboring out of love for the arts. That includes the civic-minded residents who make up the board of directors.

"We're a community-oriented venture dedicated to the performing arts," continued Morrisson. "We just kept referring to it as this place, so that's how the name came about. But one thing we're not is artsy craftsy."

AND JUST AS it is difficult to accurately describe "This Place," neither can the clientele it serves be easily categorized. For example, on a Friday night one sees all ages in all modes of dress entering the narrow doorway at 11 S. Second Ave. that balloons into a high ceiling barn type room.

The location is unusual in itself having the unique history of being, prior to This Place, a saloon, a Ford garage, a publishing house (the very first edition of Playboy was printed here) and even a laundromat.

A stained basket from an old washing machine is being utilized as a modern chandelier in the entrance way, reminding patrons of the building's previous career.

"WE GUTTED the entire building," said Morrisson, who began working on "This Place" four months before the official opening July 4 of 1971. More than eight tons of accumulated junk was carted away.

The carpet, a castoff from Chicago's YMCA, was bought at a bargain price, 25 cents a yard. Carpet padding was donated by a local merchant.

The exposed brick walls are currently decorated with numerous theatrical posters and pictures. It's a comfortable setting, extremely au naturel.

Morrisson, who refers to himself as a "theater man . . . that's my life" . . . is intent on making more people in the surrounding areas aware of the lively arts.

"We have a whole generation of young people who look upon the theater as dull."

AND IT IS the weekend fare of theatrical productions that Morrison, a past stage director at Pheasant Run Playhouse with numerous acting credits to his name, is intent on further developing.

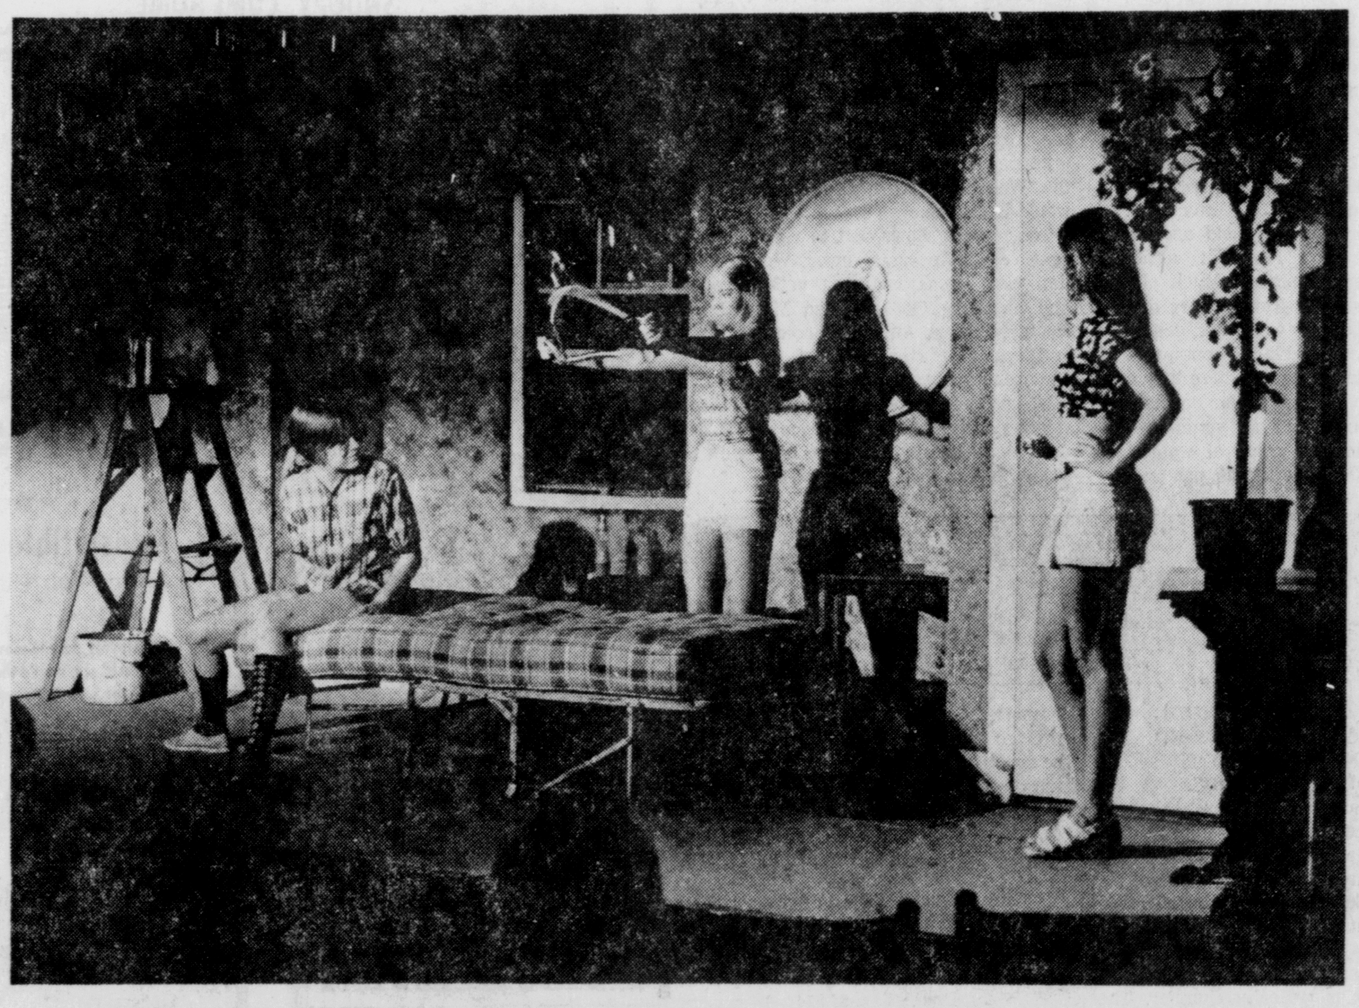
Currently he utilizes the volunteer services and talents of community theater guild members. Ultimately he hopes to attract full-time professional actors.

Morrisson is interested in both classic and contemporary, but distinguishes by stating, "I want to do those plays not ordinarily staged."

His list includes both musicals and short one-acts. Opening tonight and continuing to play Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays through August is "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown."

THE FUTURE OF "This Place" is still up for grabs. Right now apathy and expenses are the enemies. These, however, are pitted against the determination and stamina of those connected with "This Place" and the uniqueness of the entire operation.

St. Charles itself is behind "This Place" and David Morrisson and that's one big step in the right direction.



THE TRI-CITY YOUTH PROJECT, in cooperation with director David Morrisson, recently staged a three-night dramatic presentation at "This Place." A cast of four performed Ann Jellicoe's comedy, "The Knack." It is a play about three roomates and their efforts to snare a man.

The Latest: An 'Express Yourself' Exhibit

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The latest hit in town is playing on Fifth Avenue to children of all ages.

It's an "Express Yourself" show where visitors actually participate in the exhibit instead of just observing. The idea is one other galleries or exhibition centers can copy, if they can cope with the breezy informality such an exhibit produces.

The free show is the brainchild of Walter V. Swartz, director of the Hallmark Gallery, who last year staged a children's participation exhibit called "Kaleidoscope" at the gallery.

"We learned then that grownups as well as kids are looking for a creative outlet," said Swartz.

Although the do-it-yourself show, 13 projects in all, is planned to include adults, the day I visited the gallery participants in the main were children from just past toddler stage to their teens.

THEY WERE MAKING collages from paper and fabric at one table, molding castles in sand at a couple of others, creating figures from Play Dough at still another, chalking words on a wall-wide crossword puzzle, penning graffiti on an "Opinion Wall," walking through a maze guaranteed to give any claustrophobe a new attack.

Among the most popular parts of the exhibition which will run through Sept. 13 are the Formica pyramids where visitors with various shades of markers can pencil their greatest wishes, their greatest fears, and that "Opinion Wall."

"I'm afraid of a ghost," one child had written. "I'm afraid not to be loved," wrote another. Another expressed fears of "war, death, starvation, pollution, demoralization, overpopulation. . ."

THE WISHES SIDE of the pyramid included the desire to "be the youngest, richest kid in the world," "to be a ballerina," "more love, less hate," "I had a Bible, " and of all things "corn pads." One youngster simply had written the whole "Roses are red, violets are blue" rhyme.

When the pyramids are filled, attendants simply wipe off the Formica and the visitors can start a new slate.

The graffiti gang really has a go at the "Opinion Wall," but one blessing at least — when the paper wall is filled, Hallmark attendants simply pull up a fresh sheet off the roll.

"Peace" and "Stop the War" motifs appear repeatedly on the wall. Some of the scrawls get pretty blue, some attempt at humor — "Your mother made you a homo; if I buy her the yarn will she make me one too?"

SERIOUS, OFTEN quite good, poetry mixes with demands for "fewer summer camps," "more freedom in Girl Scout camps," "What this country needs is consciousness," overtones of politics such as "I do not wish to make at statement at this time." "Right on" signed off many of the scrawls.

Swartz who holds a bachelor's degree in art from Cooper Union in New York, has been with the gallery since it opened in 1964. Previously, he had been a designer for Hallmark.

Have any scraps developed among the children over, say, building castles in sand boxes?

"Not yet," said the director. But he still has until Sept. 13 to go.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

The president goes to China, or to Russia, and those countries are the style setters for the year. Suddenly, everything Chinese is good and Russian is "in," and this phenomenon sifts down even to antiques. At a show not long ago, I overheard a dealer exclaim "These Russian enamel spoons are exactly like the ones President Nixon used when he visited over there." (I suspect the price of the spoons jumped a kopeck or two.)

In four years we will celebrate the 200th birthday of us, and it will be the year of America. Foreigners are being encouraged to visit, and I can already imagine the rash of souvenirs which will be made to commemorate the event. Anything American should be the cat's meow in antiques at that time, including that collecting category long ignored in the United States, but admired in other countries, American Art Pottery. Examples of our art pottery stand in museums around the world, but it is only rather recently that these wares have come into their own at home and are being shown by our own galleries.

They were made, for the most part, in Ohio, where clay and natural gas were readily available and cheap, and were intended to compete on the market with Victorian art glass and art nouveau. It is obvious that these latter were the inspiration of the pottery designs. Even Mr. Tiffany realized the importance of this new product and his store in New York was an outlet for the better lines.

The big three is this field are Rookwood, Weller and Roseville, although there were many others. Much of the pottery was similar from factory to factory, since potters were not generally given to longevity with one company and could be lured to others, where they carried on their own particular specialties. Rookwood began as an amateur experiment among a group of women in Cincinnati. Their work was put on display at the Centennial at Philadelphia in 1876, and one of them, Maria Longworth Nichols, set up a studio for artistic pottery on ground owned by her father, in Cincinnati. She named the place for her father's home, a wooded place inhabited by rooks (crows.)

Throughout a long history until 1959, the Rookwood Co. made art potteries of all descriptions and provided an outlet for creative artists, who were given free reign to try their hands. Many went abroad to study technique and bring the new designs home. Rookwood Pottery is well marked with a set of symbols which indicate year of manufacture, type of clay, glaze and often the artist's monogram.

Samuel A. Weller sold plain clay flower pots door to door, and from this modest beginning, went on to found the largest pottery in America. He opened in Zanesville, Ohio in 1872. (Zanesville was often called "Clay City.") Until its demise in 1948, the Weller company enjoyed a reputation equal to that of Rookwood.

Roseville, which most people think of as "early wedding," with the typical matt glaze floral decorated pieces characteristic of its later period, had an early beginning in 1892. George Young set up his pottery in Roseville, Ohio, later moving to Zanesville. He could be called the "copycat potter," for he proceeded to produce a comparable line to each one the Weller or other Ohio competitors would introduce.

The picture shows, left to right, a Rozane (early Roseville) ewer, Weller Eolian vase, Rookwood wax vellum vase and an early (1886) signed Matt Daly Rookwood bowl. All are collector's prizes and typical of the work of this truly American art genre.

"JOHN GUNTHER'S INSIDE AUSTRALIA," COMPLETED AND EDITED BY WILLIAM H. FORBIS.
Harper & Row, $10

John Gunther traveled through Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea in 1969 to assemble material for the ninth of his "Inside" books. He died before he could finish the writing. Time Magazine editor-correspondent William H. Forbis then revisited the area and finished the job.

The format is typically Gunther. The book ranges through geography, history, flora and fauna, food, local customs and interesting trivia. Its two-man authorship shows itself in observations such as these:

— Chapter 1 — "There has been a quantum jump in quality of life and sophistication . . . An Australia of style, urbanity, education and culture is flowering . . ."

— Chapter 4 — "Broadly speaking, the country seems quite satisfied to be badly dressed . . . the country is solid with people who have a low threshold of contentment — unambitious, middle class people who are indifferent about getting on."

The book notes both Australia and New Zealand are being "pulled and pushed into Asia" for reasons both strategic and economic:

"Economically, the link to Japan can only grow closer . . . Australian prosperity is now a component part of Japanese prosperity . . .

"Over and over in Australia one hears the questions, 'How far would the U.S. go to protect us? Would it get into a major war for us?' Many Australians think not."

Elton John has reached the top of the charts with "Honky Chateau" (UNI 93135). It contains some good songs, but too often it disappoints.

"Rocket Man," as a single, seems to have supplied enough power to get the album to the top. (Not only is it John's first No. 1 album, it is also UNI's first.) The song soars far above anything else in the album and includes good use of a synthesizer.

Elton John

Other good cuts are the up-tempo "Honky Cat," which is just starting to receive radio play, and "Think I'm Gonna Kill Myself." "Cat" is the story of a country boy gone to the city to find excitement. "Think I'm Gonna" is the story of a city boy who can't find any excitement. But then teenagers always take things a little too seriously: "Think I'm gonna kill myself, cause a little suicide, . . . I'd like to see what the papers say on the state of teenage blues."

THE POOR BOY of the song is not allowed to use the family car and has to be in by 10 o'clock, so he says: "If you want to save my life, Brigitte Bardot gotta come and see me every night."

Most of the other songs on the album tend to merge together. Some aren't bad, but they aren't good either. "Hercules" does manage a few bright spots with its early rock chorus and Rhino whistle.

The album was recorded in France and as usual the songs are by John and Bernie Taupin.

Peggy Lee has returned to her real name for her latest album, "Norma Deloris Egstrom from Jamestown, North Dakota" (Capitol ST-11077).

The album proves Miss Lee's voice and handling of a song haven't aged. It is sort of after dinner cocktail music, especially with the heavy use of a rhythm section and Artie Butler's arrangements, but then who's against having something pleasant to listen to while drinking cocktails.

The album is good listening throughout. Miss Lee's approach is still with an alluring, silky voice and her distinctive phrasing.

AS FOR THE songs, they are varied. She and producer Tom Catalano (of Neil Diamond albums) have picked a good crop of tunes.

Two of the songs are Leon Russell's — the sensitive "A Song for You" and a version of "Superstar" that sounds much like that done by the Carpenters. There is also a snappy "When I Found You" and Louie Armstrong's "Just for a Thrill."

The whole package is given an effective finish when a good rendition of "The More I See You" slides into "I'll Be Seeing You."

Thanks for another good album, Miss Egstrom.

Walter Carlos is one of the major developers of popular electronic music. He worked, from 1966 to 1968, with Robert Moog, developer of the Moog Synthesizer. Then came the phenomenal success "Switched-On Bach" and "The Well-Tempered Synthesizer," its successor.

While working on an original electronic piece in 1971 (to be called "Timesteps"), Carlos experimented with electronic vocal pieces. The Choral Movement from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony was his choice for the first such work.

EVENTUALLY BOTH found their way into the soundtrack of the movie "Clockwork Orange." These two pieces and all the other music Carlos scored for the film (whether used or not) are included in "Walter Carlos' Clockwork Orange" (Columbia KC31480).

The recording and resulting sounds are brilliant as is another Carlos album "Sonic Seasonings." (Columbia KC 31234). In the latter, Carlos has developed aural tapestries based on the four seasons.

The album contains as many levels of sound experiences as the listener would wish to explore. Much of the album is a manipulation of the sense of sound and you can actually hear some things that were not recorded.

'Frying Pan' At Des Plaines Church Aug. 11-13

The Des Plaines Players, a group of young thespians, is presenting "Out of the Frying Pan" at the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines next weekend, Aug. 11, 12 and 13.

The play concerns the problems encountered by six young actors trying to impress a famous Broadway producer who happens to live in the apartment below them.

One of the hopeful actresses, Marge Benson, is played by Tina Kaneen, 20, a junior at Kansas University where she is majoring in Spanish.

TINA APPEARED in several variety shows at Maine West High School while a student there. She was Ada in "Noah" and Gladys in "The Skin of Our Teeth," two Maine West productions. At Kansas University, Tina appeared in the annual Rock Chalk Revue.

Marge's romantic interest in the play, Tony Dennison, is played by Matt O'Grady. A senior at Maine West, Matt, 16, has appeared in "The Skin of Our Teeth" and several Maine West variety shows. Matt plans to continue his career as either a director, teacher or composer of music.

Mike Maxa, 19, plays George Bodell, another member of the sextet. A sophomore at Northern Illinois University, Mike is a speech major with emphasis on radio, television and film.

NED PETERSON, 19, has appeared in over 25 productions for Des Plaines Footlighters, Des Plaines Theatre Guild, Maine West, Northwestern University and WMAQ-TV. In "Out of the Frying Pan," he plays Norman Reese. Ned will enter North Carolina School of the Arts this fall to study drama.

Portraying Dottie Coburn is Sandy Salerno, 18, a teller at the First National Bank of Des Plaines. At Maine West, Sandy appeared in "Noah," "The Skin of Our Teeth" and "Barefoot in the Park."

Kate Ault, the last of the six young thespians, is played by Katie Young, 19, also a graduate of Maine West. Katie appeared in "Annie Get Your Gun," and "The Sound of Music." She was student director of "The Miracle Worker" performed at Maine West. Katie is a secretary for the Do All Company.

A SENIOR AT Elmhurst College, theater major Paul Zeissler of Palatine is directing the play. Having directed 10 plays at college, Paul also has been tour manager of the Elmhurst College Chancel Players.

"Out of the Frying Pan" is being presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 4 p.m. Sunday.

TINA KANEEN, kneeling, Sue Akers and Kim Beedy, lying down, appear in "Out of the Frying Pan," being presented by a group of young actors who call themselves the Des Plaines Players.

Circus At Prospect Plaza

Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants are giving out free circus tickets (with a $2.50 purchase) for the John Strong 1869 Circus which opens today at the Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads, and continues through next Tuesday.

The circus, sponsored by the Chicago Jaycees in cooperation with the Mount Prospect Jaycees, will have performances today, 6 and 8 p.m.; tomorrow, 1, 4 and 7 p.m.; Sunday, 1 and 4 p.m.; Monday, 4 and 7 p.m.; and Tuesday, 2 and 6 p.m.

The present version of the 1869 Circus originated in San Diego, Calif., in the spring of 1969 for the celebration of the city's 100th anniversary.

Every effort was made to duplicate a circus of 1869 although some liberties were taken since the electric light was not yet invented and wagons were used for transportation instead of trucks in 1869. However the same kind of acts and props have been retained, according to a spokesman for the merchants.

THERESA DE LOOF OF Des Plaines displays the framed pictures she creates out of live flowers which she grows in her yard. The preservation process, which involves pressing the blooms and sealing them into an air-tight frame, enables her to enjoy the flowers year round.

An Artist With Flowers

by MONICA WILCH

To capture and prolong the fleeting beauty of flowers is the ideal which motivates Mrs. Theresa H. DeLoof of Des Plaines. To this end, she has made a hobby of pressing flowers into framed pictures.

A gardener with an especially "green thumb," Mrs. DeLoof raises many kinds of perennials and annuals in her yard and became even more expert in the nature of flowers while working in a florist shop.

She first began working with drying flowers and then turned to pressing them to retain them in a natural state. She placed them between newspapers and stacked heavy books and bricks on top for two to eight weeks. Now, she uses a wooden press, which makes the flowers flatter and smoother and which requires only a couple days.

The real trick, Mrs. DeLoof says, is in framing the flowers and sealing them so that no moisture can get in. This is what keeps the color from fading and prevents deterioration.

CERTAIN KINDS OF flowers press more satisfactorily than others, too. Mrs. DeLoof finds that daisies, violas, larkspur, and roses are best, while thicker varieties — such as mums — won't work.

When done properly, the process preserves the flowers indefinitely. Mrs. DeLoof has some that are 20 years old. She offers this hint for achieving success — do not pick the flowers when wet, even it it's just morning dew.

Mrs. DeLoof experiments with a variety of background materials. She arranges the flowers on velvet, felt, silk, linen and various kinds of paper.

This particular craft is more commonly seen in Switzerland and Germany, according to Mrs. DeLoof. In this country, imported pressed flowers can be found in gift shops.

Mrs. DeLoof's art was on exhibit during July in the Art Corner at Des Plaines National Bank.

Schaumburg High Graduates Teamed In 'David And Lisa'

Holding hands will come easy for Cecily Atcher and Bill Eggbeer who have the leads in Schaumburg Festival Theatre's first production of the new season, "David and Lisa."

While this production marks their debut in community theater, both young people who just graduated this spring from Schaumburg High School, have been quite active in school productions. Cecily as a child also appeared in television commercials.

Although Cecily and Bill have known each other since they were 11, it was Cecily who gave Bill his "first kiss" on stage in "The Skin Of Our Teeth." Other productions in which they have performed together are "Anything Goes," "Little Mary Sunshine," "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Hello Dolly."

CECILY'S OTHER interests include playing the guitar, banjo and piano. This summer she is employed as an apartment rental agent and Bill is the assistant librarian at Schaumburg Township Public Library.

This fall, Cecily will study drama at Northwestern University, while Bill will attend Lawrence University in Wisconsin.

When asked what they do to relax, Bill answered, "I like to walk." Cecily replied, "I don't think I ever do."

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: How can I get a grayish tinge out of Dacron and nylon curtains? —Mrs. J. D. Crawford.

There is a treatment that works for orlons, cottons and nylons. It may work for Dacron You add a cup of dishwater detergent and a cup of bleach to a gallon of hot water and soak the article for 30 minutes. Do not use a metal container. A plastic pail is okay. Finally, wring out the clothes, put them through the regular cycle of the washing machine with the regular detergent and add a cup of vinegar to the final rinse.

Dear Dorothy: I made some stew in the pressure cooker and cooled it off, tasted it and then put the cover back on, thinking to keep it warm until we were ready to use it. To my amazament, the stew kept cooking just enough to almost make mush of the meat and potatoes. It was still delicious but know what not to do the next time I make seomething like this. —Frances M.

Dear Dorothy: I bought a set of plastic containers with covers. I have a terrible time getting the covers on the two largest bowls. Have you ever heard of this and is there anything to make it go on easier? —Marge H.

We've all had this problem, and know how annoying it can be. Plastic stretches under heat, so pour hot water on the cover until it gets hot, dry quickly and then stretch on.

Dear Dorothy: My mother-in-law gives me more rendered chicken fat then I can use. Can I freeze it? —Alma C.

I've never frozen it, but a number of friends say it can be done. Tell your mother-in-law to put it in small jars. They will keep for a long time in the refrigerator when they're not opened.

Child Needs School Preparedness

by RENA PEDERSON

DALLAS (UPI) — The First Day at School should be a treasured event, along the lines of First Bicycle, First Date, First Kiss. But if the child is not adequately prepared, it can be his "First Traumatic Encounter with the Establishment."

"The most important thing is for a parent to show that starting school is a very positive experience, not an abandonment," said Joe Pitts, a specialist in elementary education for the Dallas public school system.

"A lot of today's children are rather isolated due to apartment living — they're hothouse children. Some parents just take them right out of the nursery and plop them in school and it is traumatic for them," Pitts said.

Pitts said preparing children for school and pre-school should begin the day of the baby's birth as a part of proper child care. He suggested several key questions for parents with pre-school children to check their preparedness:

—HAS YOUR CHILD had school life pictured to him in a way that will make him think of it a delightful adventure?

—Has he had enough association with other children that groups will appeal to him rather than startle him?

—Has he spent some time away from mother so that he has a feeling of independence?

—Has he learned acceptance of such responsibilities as dressing himself, handing small amounts of money and taking care of his personal property?

"It is very important for the child to understand the consideration of the rights and feelings of others; he will get along with fewer problems," Pitts said, "For example he should understand taking turns, respecting the possessions of others or sharing his own."

Pitts said that many children are terrified when they are thrust into the school world and find they don't know how to eat in a cafeteria or use a public restroom.

"SOME CHILDREN do not even know how to get home or where their father works and feel abandoned at the end of the school day," Pitts said. "We suggest that parents take the child on outings to a cafeteria or to city parks or zoos to give him experience. And he should spend some time in the homes of relatives or friends to get used to the feeling of being left and to lejrn how to behave away from home."

Then there are minor things to make a child independent: teaching him to tie his shoes, cover his mouth when sneezing, go to the bathroom alone and to take care of his money.

"We don't feel parents should try to teach the child to read and write at home so they can have a head start on classmates," Pitts said, "Often this teaching is faulty and it is harder to correct the faulty teaching than to just teach the child."

ACCORDING TO Pitts one of the most important things is not threatening the child with being dumped in school or telling him, "Just wait until the teacher gets ahold of you" — for the child will fear both school and the teacher.

Pitts said the parent also should have given the child enough experience at visiting so that when he is dropped off at school, the child will not feel deserted. The child should also know how he's getting home and what to do in case of a delay, like going to the office instead of wandering off.

"There are so many general things, like teaching the child how to handle a book . . . encouraging him to learn new words . . . having a quiet place for reading in the home . . . giving counting experience with beans, spools and other simple objects," Pitts said. "And the parents should encourage the child to talk, to express his experiences."

"GETTING READY for school begins when you take the child home from the nursery with the parents showing an interest in the child's training from the beginning," Pitts said.

"Ideally the welfare of the child should be the center of the parents' interests. If not, you're in trouble."

Letters From Camp

NEW YORK (UPI) —Some eight million youths this summer are attending 10,500 camps nationwide, according to the American Camping Association.

From a parent's standpoint, the most important thing about camp, now that the children are there, is — letters from camp. Save the priceless ones for the family scrapbook.

Counsels Married Partners

Business Booms For Sex Therapist

by RENA PEDERSON

DALLAS (UPI) — Dr. Emma Lee Doyle's friends call her "the Joan of Arc of Texas Sexes," because she is leading a crusade for couples with sex problems.

The vivacious blonde is a family counselor with the experience of having been the first female research assistant with Masters and Johnson, the famous sex research team.

"Unfortunately, business is good . . . it is estimated some 50 per cent of all American marriages have some form of sexual dysfunction," she said.

"Fortunately, because of Masters and Johnson and the flurry of books on understanding human sexuality, more and more people — even the most conservative of Texans — are realizing something can be done about sex problems."

Looking a bit like actress Hope Lange, the 37-year-old therapist can create quite a stir in a restaurant with her unabashed talk about the most intimate sex problems. But she's not the least bit embarrassed.

"MY GOSH, that's the problem," she said. "People are afraid to talk about their problems, even to their own marriage partners. Almost all of the problem is mental, not physical, and usually it is caused by lack of communication."

"Sex and money are the most secret topics of conversation in the world."

Mrs. Doyle received her bachelor of science degree and a mater's degree in education from East Texas State University and did graduate studies at Colorado State and Florida State University. She was about to begin post-doctoral work at the University of Minnesota when the chance came to work with Drs. Masters and Johnson.

"They have done a great deal to enhance the knowledge of professionals and lay people," she said. "They have been controversial, but they have clarified many of the myths about sex. The therapy and the techniques they developed will eventually help millions of people."

A NATIVE OF Paris, Tex., she said that coming from the "Bible Belt" of Texas ethics hasn't always made it easy to be known as a "sex therapist." She recently staged a workshop, "Talking About It Helps," for the American Psychological Association, which was meeting in Dallas, and she invited her parents to come hear her speak.

"They've never heard me give one of my lectures and I just knew they'd be calling for a stretcher to carry them out," she said with a mischievous laugh. "But they understand now this is my work."

She said the recent publication of "clean sex" books has encouraged more and more Americans to be open about sex therapy. As she put it: "Once people find out I'm a sex therapist — even passengers on planes — they immediately start telling me their problems, their parents' problems, their bosses' problems. Everybody has a problem and they have found out they can talk about it."

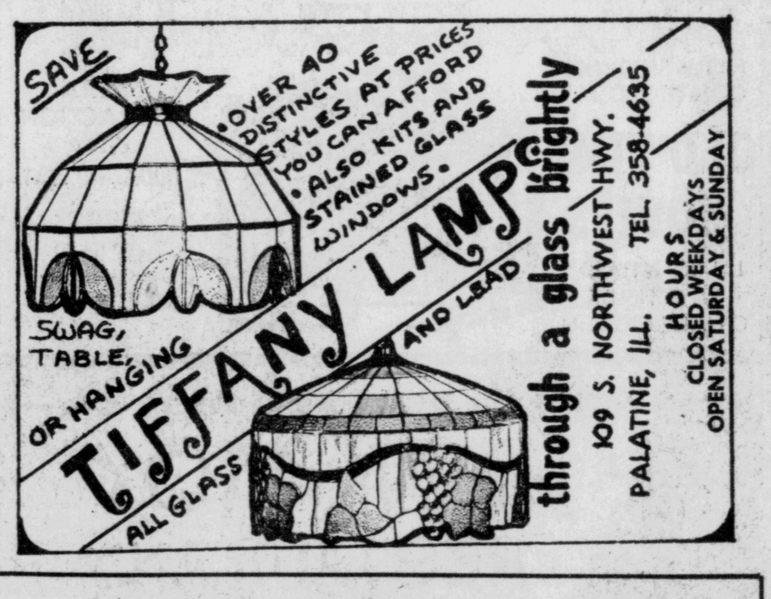
MRS. DOYLE travels often to give workshops and she teaches at Texas Women's University in addition to practicing marriage counseling and sex therapy in Dallas.

She said many of her patients are surprised when they "come in the door and find out I don't have a gun and horn-rimmed glasses. I wear casual clothing, look casual, talk casual and they relax."

She has been divorced for seven years and has two daughters, ages 11 and 17.

"I'm very open about the fact that I have had a marriage that did not work out," she said. "I often tell my patients I can understand what they mean because I have known both the traumas and pleasures of marriage."

She said she hopes to get married again. "It's lovely to live with someone when you have a loving relationship."



50th Anniversary Pair Met On Riverboat Trip

A cruise on a Mississippi riverboat fifty-odd years ago brought about the meeting of a young couple who are still rolling along together — Carl and Amy Dahl of Hoffman Estates.

They celebrated their golden wedding day July 8. It was fifty years ago that Carl Dahl and the former Amy Bohman were married in Minneapolis after a courtship which began aboard the old "Capitol" operating from St. Paul, Minn. Both were born and reared in Minneapolis and lived there until 1925.

They moved to Chicago that year and finally to Hoffman Estates in 1960, settling in their present home at 168 Arlington.

Carl retired from the Chicago Post Office Department in 1956.

ON THE ACTUAL anniversary date, Carl and Amy were guests at a family barbecue at their son Earl's home in Streamwood.

But the following day, Sunday, was the real celebration. It began with the Dahls attending an early service at Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Hoffman, where they have worshipped for years. The whole family went with them, including daughter Doris, who lives at home, and their two sons, Earl and Warren, and families of Streamwood. All nine of the grandchildren were also present.

IN THE AFTERNOON the whole family returned to the church hall along with seventy guests invited for an open house. The pastors conducted a special service featuring favorite hymns of the couple, recollections offered by friends and relatives, and a short response by Carl himself.

Even Pastor Burmeister, the first minister at Prince of Peace, was there from Chatsworth, Ill., to add his good wishes.

As a topping to the celebration, greetings arrived from President Nixon and from the Dahls' favorite entertainer, Lawrence Welk.

Making Home In Germany

For the first year of married life Lee and Kathleen Weir will be living in Bitburg, Germany, where Air Force Sgt. Weir is stationed. That promises a myriad of travel opportunities for a long honeymoon after settling in their apartment in Bitburg.

The bride is the former Kathleen Anne Koren, daughter of the Edward F. Korens of 226 S. Donald, Arlington Heights. She has been teaching at Dempster Junior High School, Mount Prospect.

Kathleen met her bridegroom at Northern Illinois University where he graduated in '69 and she in '71. She is also a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings July 15 in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights at 11 a.m. Afterwards there was a luncheon at Valley Lo Sports Club in Glenview for 200 guests. The newlyweds spent a short honeymoon at the Wisconsin Dells but are planning a longer one in Europe.

Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Weir of Freeport, Ill.

He and Kathleen chose several of their good friends as attendants. The bride's former roommate, Mrs. Terri Haley of Blue Island, was the matron of honor and Roger Hess, best man.

Bridesmaids included Kathleen Tiernan, Elmwood Park; Marla Parent, Lisle; and Sharyn McMullen, Buffalo Grove. Ushers were Michael Koren, the bride's brother; Russell Haley, Blue Island; and Kevin Weselak, Woodridge.

THE BRIDE entered the sanctuary wearing a white silk organza gown with Empire waist, high neck and long fitted sleeves. The bodice was trimmed with an Alencon lace motif that was frosted with pearls and crystals. The lace also accented the skirt and edged the chapel train.

Sgt. and Mrs. Lee A. Weir

Kathleen topped her gown with a ballerina-length veil cascading from a lace Camelot headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath and as "something old and borrowed" a handkerchief from the groom's grandmother's wedding.

The bridal attendants wore gowns in a yellow, orange and gold print with pink accent. They were styled with a rolled collar, long full sleeves and Empire bodice. The girls carried nosegays of yellow glamellias and talisman roses.

Announce Marriage

A former Prospect Heights resident, Mrs. Ethelyn "Bobbie" Willin was married to Jesse Rodriquez June 24 in Westminster Presbyterian Church, Des Plaines, by the Rev. Barbara Spellman.

Mrs. Letha Johnson was matron of honor and Peter Sczepaniak best man. Both are from Des Plaines. Only they and the couple's children were present for the one o'clock ceremony.

A reception followed for 125 guests at the couple's home at 61 Dover Drive, Des Plaines.

Mrs. Rodriquez is a cosmetician at Euclid-River Pharmacy and a volunteer for Omni-house Hot Line. Her husband works for the Village of Glenview.

Saving Water

CHICAGO, Ill. (UPI) — "Better water management" is a term you'll be hearing a lot this year. It refers to the need for water conservation and pollution control. Even if your area doesn't have water shortages, you can save money by conserving water.

The National Association of Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors says a thermostatic control on a shower saves $10 a year in water and fuel bills. Having a leaky faucet fixed can save $30 a year on the water bill. 1-16th-in leak wastes 3,000 gallons a month.

Redecorating Time

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — How frequently do American families redecorate their homes?

The redecorating cycle, says Goodyear, a major residential floor tile manufacturer, has been cut from 15 years at the end of the 1940s to seven years today.

Wildlife Pledge

The World Wildlife Fund offers furriers the opportunity to sign a pledge that they will "no longer buy or sell the skins or finished products of wild animals on the endangered list as set forth by the World Wildlife Fund."

Gail Blythe Weds In California

The entire Alfred E. Blythe family of 58 W. Robertson, Palatine, drove to California for the wedding of Gail Monica Blythe and Rodney G. Askew of Los Angeles. Gail's sister, 8-year-old Cynthe Ann, was junior bridesmaid and her three brothers, Brian, Gary and Bruce, ushered for the July wedding in St. Justin Martyr Church, Anaheim.

The bride and groom met while attending the University of Southern California School of Pharmacy. Gail is still a student there, but Rodney has graduated and is working at a Los Angeles pharmacy. He earned a degree from Bakersfield (Calif.) College before enrolling at USC.

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Askew of Shafter, Calif., hosted two receptions for the newlyweds, one immediately after the wedding at McAuley Hall in Orange, near Anaheim, and one a week later for friends who were unable to go to Los Angeles for the festivities.

The bride's family remained in California to attend the second reception in Shafter.

GAIL CHOSE three of her college roommates to be her attendants, besides her young sister. Maid of honor was Rita Rogers of Torrance, Calif.; bridesmaids were Betti Delaney, La Mesa, Calif., and Patricia Patterson, Playa del Rey, Calif.

Stanley Askew was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were Ken Wittenberg, Eureka, Calif., and David Badgley, Visalia, Calif.

FOR THE ONE o'clock nuptials, the bride wore an organza gown with a bodice overlaid in lace. The lace also was appliqued on the skirt and its chapel train. A floor-length veil of silk illusion, topped with a fingertip layer of veiling, was held in place by a headpiece of lace roses studded with seed pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and white pompons.

Her attendants were attired in two-toned gowns styled with a pink crepe bodice and skirt of apple green cotton crochet. They wore pink large-brimmed hats trimmed with matching green ribbon and carried pink and white pompons.

Gail and Rodney spent a week's honeymoon at San Luis Obispo and Carmel, Calif., and are making their home in Glendale.

Mrs. George Vitoux Honored With Local AOPi Rose Award

The name of Mrs. George Vitoux of Arlington Heights was added to the Rose Honor Roll at the summer luncheon of Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi. Mrs. Vitoux was given a recognition pin as a memento.

The presentation was made by Mrs. Fred Burghard of Park Ridge, a member of the Rose Power committee which selects and honors outstanding local alums.

Mrs. Vitoux has given extensive service to her fraternity. Prior to joining Northwest Suburban chapter, she belonged to Chicago West Suburban, Champaign-Urbana, and was instrumental in starting the Rockford chapter.

SHE IS A CHARTER member of Northwest Suburban and has been its president. She has also served as president of the AOPi Chicago Area Council and as president of Northwest Suburban Panhellenic Association.

Nationally, she has worked as director for Region IV and served on various committees. She has also earned the national Rose award for outstanding service.

Most recently, Mrs. Vitoux was named one of three members of the International Ruby Fund committee. This group administers aid to individual collegiate and alumna members in time of dire need.

Mrs. Vitoux is affiliated with Alpha Omicron Pi as a student at the University of Illinois.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

"THE WANT ADS"!

610—Dogs, Pets, Equipment

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

My name is Beau. I'm an eight month old, orange and white male Brittany Spaniel born last Thanksgiving Day. Last January my master chose me from all my brothers and sisters to go live with him and his wife and their 5 children in Lake Zurich. I was very proud! For the past 7 months I've had the time of my life. But now I'm growing faster than the kids. My master says maybe he's being unfair to me. So we sat down and had a "master to dog" talk. He told me of my ancestory . . . of how my mother loves hunting with her master . . and how I am AKC registered and what it means . . . that I've had all my shots and never been sick a day in my short life . . . of why I love to run and play in a BIG yard . . . and that I am the friskiest, most lovable dog he has ever owned. So we agreed, in choked voices, that if there is a family somewhere that has a lot of room for me to romp and play, and maybe a possibility to be taught hunting, I would be able to enjoy my life to its fullest and we all would be happy. If anyone would like to help us out, call 438-8003 for further details. Resume furnished on request. P.S. You have to have a big box of chocolate cookies!

Tv Mailbag

c/o Paddock Publications P.O. Box 280 Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006

Is it true that Cher always wears wigs on THE SONNY AND CHER COMEDY HOUR?

K.B.
Des Plaines

Cher Bono

Always is a pretty strong word. Cher does wear wigs most of the time, but not always. She has beautiful hair, but has to resort to wigs due to the fast costume changes. Believe it or not, but impressions are set by some of her hair-dos.

Have you ever heard of Leon Russell? He was in the concert of Bangladesh. What is his address, if you have it?

Jill Larson
Wheeling

Of course, we have Leon's address for you. Address your letter to him c/o Denny Cordell, 5112 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood Calif. 90027.

* * *

I read your Mailbag every week and I want to congratulate you for your work. Where can I send for the poem of CREATURE FEATURES? Why is the SIXTH SENSE no longer on? It was a good program.

Wendy Hansen
Palatine

Thank you. We can print the Creature poem:

Gruesome ghouls and grisley ghosts
Wretched souls and cursed hosts.
Vampires bite and villains creep,
Demons scream and shadows sleep,
Blood runs cold in every man
Fog rolls in and coffins slam.
Mortals quake and full moon rise,
Creatures haunt and terrorize.

In print, the poem loses some of the effect. Marty McNeely really does an excellent job reading it.

The SIXTH SENSE had very stiff competition MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE, so it was taken from the air for the summer. Gary Collins and crew will be back this fall.

Could you tell me the address of GARFIELD GOOSE? I'm five and a fan of his.

H.K.
Arlington Heights

Perhaps your mother will help you to write the King at WGN-TV, 2501 Bradley Place, Chicago, Ill. 60619.

Does Hugh O'Brien have a glass eye?

M.S.
Palatine

Hugh O'Brien

Hugh doesn't have a glass eye. He recently finished a film called "Probe" in which he portrayed a space-age private eye. "The show is pure escapism, and with the world being as troubled as it is today, it's exactly what we need," says O'Brien. By no means an escapist when he's off camera, Hugh's interests extend to charities and youth groups. Hugh is a man very concerned with the individual and feels that the main thing is 'to keep busy.'

* * *

Where can I write to Lily Tomlin? I am a great fan of hers and would like to get posters, stickers, etc.

Sue Clotfelter
Arlington Heights

Lily Tomlin

The 'One ringy-dingy' lady gets her fan mail c/o NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020. Lily's a little off beat like her characters on LAUGH-IN. A native of New York, she started her career by doing dialect impersonations in shows she put on in her backyard. Next she went to coffee houses to perform. After borrowing $5 from each of nine friends, she invaded New York. Before joining LAUGH-IN, Lily was a regular on THE MUSIC SCENE. She now has an album out of her as Ernestine.

Can you give me the addresses for Ron Santo and Jose Cardenal?

S.W.
Mt. Prospect

The mailing address for all the Cubs is c/o Chicago Cubs, N. Clark and W. Addison, Chicago Ill. Hey! Hey!

We have a friend who is a real fan of BOZO. She has never seen Bozo as Bob Bell. Where could we get a picture of him as Bob Bell to give her as a birthday present?

Mrs. Fran Shull
Rolling Meadows

Write to Bob Bell c/o WGN-TV, 2501 Bradley Place, Chicago Ill. 60618. She probably wouldn't think the picture is of the man who plays Bozo, so make sure you tell her or write the name on the photo. There is a drastic change!

* * *

I am a great admirer of Jay Stewart from LET'S MAKE A DEAL. I wonder if you could print a picture of him. Please tell us his phone number and address.

D.C.
Arlington Heights

Jay Stewart

Jay is a very talented fellow who, it seems, has no qualms about looking ridiculous in some of the costumes he wears on the show. He has a good audience rapport. Monte makes the deal, but Jay carries it through. Sorry, no phone numbers, but write to him c/o ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Newcombe challenging Laver on 'CBS Tennis Classic' this Sunday afternoon

Rod Laver, seeded No. 1, faces John Newcombe, the No. 9 seed, in a quarterfinal match of the "CBS Tennis Classic" to be broadcast on the CBS Television Network Sunday, Aug 6.

Bud Collins is the commentator for the tournament played at Sea Pines Plantation, Hilton Head, S.C. The tournament winner receives $10,000.

In his opening match Laver eliminated Nikki Pilic in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5. In the first set, Laver broke service in the fifth and seventh games. Pilic came back to break in the eighth and hold in the ninth, but Laver held his service in the 10th game to take the set. In the second set, Pilic's 3-0 lead was overcome by Laver, who broke his opponent's service three times to win, 7-5.

Newcome reached the quarterfinals by defeating Charlie Pasarell two sets to one. He took the first set easily, 6-2, lost the second set, 6-4, and coasted to a 6-1 victory in the third set.

Guess who came to lunch?

It isn't every day that a meeting of the writers for "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" is visited by Henry Kissinger, White House foreign Policy adviser, and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to the United States.

But it happened one time at the NBC Television Network's Burbank Studios as part of a tour arranged for the two foreign policy experts.

THE "LAUGH-IN" visit was a surprise to all the jokesmiths except Paul W. Keyes, producer and head writer of the comedy series. Keyes, tipped off in advance, convened the writers' meeting and kept it going—and going—waiting for the dignitaries' arrival.

Finally the door opened and the presidential aide popped in. "Hi, Henry," said Keyes, a personal friend of the visitor.

WRITER ROBEY Greeber, whose view of the door was totally blocked by a filing cabinet, moaned "Kissinger, I suppose." He was right, and also stunned.

Amidst howls of laughter, Kissinger introduced the Soviet envoy and Keyes came up with, "Now, Mr. Ambassador, you know where our foreign policy really is made." A writer piped up with "What's the matter, couldn't you get into Disneyland?"

As both dignitaries shook hands all around, Keyes introduced his staff en masse wit, "Gentlemen, meet our writers—these are the guys I get blamed for."

KEYES STARTED to point out that John Wayne would be the guest star on the first show next fall.

Before Kissinger had a chance to comment, writer Jim Mulligan chimed in, "Mr. K., tell me something. If you're here, who's in charge?"

More laughs. But when they subsided, there was a lull—sudden, but not long. Marc London, writer, broke it up with his best conversation-making tones: "Mr. Kissinger, we were both at Harvard at the same time. Tell me, what have you been doing since then?"

THE FEW minutes allotted for the visit were up now and the two men started to leave—or, perhaps, retreat—as the wisecracks continued.

The President's aide had his hand on the doorknob when another queried, "What do you think of that old song, 'I Wonder Who's Kissinger Now?' "

Mr. Kissinger's laugh was drowned out by the sound of the door he closed behind him.

Almost at once, the door opened again. This time it was the writers' secretary, JaDe Jo, with another surprise—a birthday cake for one of the jokesters, David Panich.

Right off, another writer cracked, "Do you have Kissinger and Dobrynin at all your birthday parties?"

"No," said Panich, "next year I'm expecting the Secretary of the Navy."

James Cagney

James Cagney stars in "Tribute to a Bad Man," powerful Western depicting a man's unshakable confidence in himself, on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Aug. 9 on the CBS Television Network.

Cagney portrays Jeremy Rodock, whose granite character was chiseled in a land where only the strong could survive. His one passion is for horses, which come first in his heart, even before Jocasta (Miss Papas), who loves him. Because of his passion, he estranges those close to him. When the cruelty of his acts is driven home to him by an anguished boy who idolizes him, Rodock finally realizes the importance of humility.

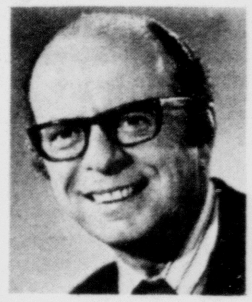
All in a day's game

It is 11 a.m., more than two hours before the Chicago Cubs take to the turf at Wrigley Field, and already several hundred fans are arriving at the park. Among them is Jack Rosenberg, sports editor of WGN Continental Broadcasting Company.

Rosenberg, long known as the "right hand man" of veteran Chicago sportscaster Jack Brickhouse, has been making the rounds preparing for the telecast of the day's Cubs-Cincinnati game. Before noon, he gathers statistics from the Cubs' sports information office, visits both the Cubs and Reds dressing rooms, and lines up an interview for announcer Jim West's Leadoff Man pre-game show.

WITH THOSE tasks completed, Rosenberg walks to a staircase leading to an inconspicuously-located room conspicuously called "The Pink Poodle," a for-official-press-only gathering spot where writers and broadcasters are noisily conversing over lunch. Among them are Brickhouse, West, and WGN-TV's sports producer-director Arne Harris.

By now, the Cubs are on the field for batting practice, and fans are buzzing ... can pitcher Milt Pappas win?...the prediction of showers didn't include Wrigley Field, did it?...hey, look at those hot pants!...do you think we'll get on TV today so the folks back home can see us?...



Jack Rosenberg

Arne Harris

The folks back home may get that chance, because by now the WGN-TV cameramen are in position, scouting the stands for possible crowd shots. The telecast is less than an hour away. It will be beamed to a large Chicago-area audience on WGN-TV, and to Cub fans throughout the Midwest on a number of stations taking the WGN feed as the "Chicago Cubs Network."

WITH A QUICK sandwich out of the way, Rosenberg walks the ramp to the TV broadcasting box, getting things in order for the telecast. Harris, who Brickhouse calls "the best baseball director in the United States," stays at ground level under the stands, walking to a mobile truck unit. He situates himself in the technical warehouse, which is complete with four screens, instant replay eqiupment and a wealth of oher electronic paraphernalia. Harris, a Chicago Emmy winner for his direction of sports events, will direct four cameramen, five technicians in the truck, and still find time to converse with both his assistant in the pressbox and the Brickhouse-West announcing duo during the game.

West and Brickhouse part ways as they leave the "Poodle," with West going onto the field for his pre-game interview. Brickhouse walks upstairs to the box, amid fans shouting "Hi, Jack Brickhouse!" By the time he reaches his booth, a monitor shows him that West is on-the-air with his guest. Rosenberg is busily typing up interesting little tidbits of information that both Brickhouse and West can use at their discretion during the game.

An Andy Frain usherette leaves the booth after bringing in some Coca-Cola and 7-Up for the broadcast team, only to be followed by an usher who hands assistant director Verne Brown a handful of mail and notes that fans in the stands have written for Brickhouse and West. Brown sifts through it, then places it on the counter where the two announcers will occassionally look it over and will read it when time permits during the telecast.

SUDDENLY, IT'S "Batter up" and Brickhouse calls the first three innings, watching the monitor more than the actual playing field below. "Every day I have to tell myself to watch my monitor," according to Brickhouse, "because we've got to be together with what the audience is seeing." Three innings with West doing the play-by-play follow...Rosenberg continues to type, feeding the information to Brickhouse and West...someone sends up a huge bag of popcorn to the WGN booth, and everyone seems thankful as handfuls are eaten.

Just as suddenly, it's the ninth inning. West greets a Cincy ballplayer who will be Brickhouse's Tenth Inning post-game guest. The game over, West departs quickly and Brickhouse situates his guest tor the show.

For the WGN crew, perhaps just another day. But for those who caught the telecast, a good game from beautiful Wrigley Field, even if they didn't see their kin or friends on TV...
